The WEEK

By A. M. BRAYTON

PEOPLE about the state may be more or less mystified by what has been going on at the capital during the week. There has been something of an explosion. A brisk change in the attitude of the governor has been manifested. Until a few days ago Governor Blaine has pursued his usual policy of communicating his views to the legislature and leaving matterse to them. However, heads of departments, and some progressive politicians outside of the administration, had been very busy attempting to influence legislation.

Early in the session it had been noised about, probably with official inspiration, that legislation would not be "radical," and that such fundamental things as were undertaken would be pursued with the prudence that had usually accompanied progressive programs in Wisconsin. There was something of a stir, therefore, when it appeared that, taken as a whole, the effects of proposed legislation would be something of a thunderbolt to the business elements of the state.

There were the usual protests from the big business interests, but in this case they were accompanied by objections raised by the smaller business men in large numbers. As these protests are ordinary political phenamena, little attention was paid to them in administration circles.

But within the past ten days there have been new and interesting developments. Dyed-in-the-wool progressives, among them some of Senator La Follette's most influential followers, have been flocking to the capital and holding conference with the governor. They are not men who are interested in any "bluffs" that might be raised to save business from just taxation or other fair obligations, but they are men who are deeply interested in the idea that in Wisconsin progressive measures shall always be practicable. They are of the bigger type who know that the welfare of all classes is dependent upon business, and who believe in steady and tested progress rather than in revolution.

No doubt, they found the governor in a responsive mood. As one who has been through the experiences of the progressive movement in Wisconsin, he must have been somewhat concerned over the turn affairs had taken in the legislature. The most important bills had been drawn with little regard for his recommendations, which had been progressive, but accompanied with the caution of one upon whom rested heavy responsibility.

What had been going forward had been obvious to the most casual observer. The progressive movement had become so strongly intrenched that men with political ambitions were eager to forward their opportunities for office. This is always true where a party is so strong that to be nominated means to be elected. And so political aspirants in the legislature had been introducing bills designed more for their political effect at home than because of well considered interest in the public welfare. Not only this, but progressive leaders in departments, and a number in no way officially connected with the administration, had been busying themselves in an effort to create reputations as extreme progressives or "radicals." It was natural in such circumstances the merits of measures were not always foremost in the minds of those who promoted them.

Naturally, Governor Blaine has been deeply interested. His own political fortunes must depend upon the soundness of the legislative program. But this was not all. Among the political ambitions that were so manifesting themselves were a number that aimed at the governor himself. The big prize is the governorship for the next term, and after that the governorship and the United States senatorship.

And so Governor Blaine has a double reason for feeling that he can no longer permit the legislature to run wild in the hands of political lobbyists. He has taken a firm stand. He has called some of the ring-leaders of the faction which seeks to oust him upon the carpet. He has given them notice to keep their hands off. He has held important conferences looking to the development of a legislative program upon which he will be safe to go to the people two years hence. No doubt it will set up important alterations in some of the more important bills.

* * * *

It has been the practice of Governor Blaine to do his fighting on the stump, and to conduct himself in a conciliatory way in office. Today he must fight with his back to the wall if he would retain his political leadership. Those who question whether the governor has the courage to do this may consult their recollections of the fight made by Governor Blaine to expose the Stevenson senatorial campaign, and his independent run for the governorship following the first nomination of Emanuel L. Phillip.

* * * *

But this does not mean that the legislature will not remain progressive. While the bill to abolish the National Guard was defeated by the combined influence of Governor

CALIFORNIA VOLCANO SHOWS SIGN OF NEW ACTIVITY WITH BIG BLAST OF SMOKE AND STEAM

WESTWOOD, Calif.—Mount Lassen is erupting the heaviest volume of smoke and steam seen from its crater in seven years, according to observers here. The mountain began to emit steam shortly before noon, followed by an immense outpouring of smoke, apparently just east of the place where the last previous eruption took place.

Erupted in 1914

SAN FRANCISCO.—Lassen Peak, the only active volcano in the continental United States exclusive of Alaska, is in the extreme northern part of California. The first eruption was noted May 30, 1914, when a crater 40 to 150 feet deep, was made.

More than 160 eruptions took place in 1914 and 1915 and the volcano has belched smoke many times since. May 1, 1915, a flood of mud from the peak wrecked houses in Hat Creek valley, near its base. Residents were driven from their homes and many cattle killed.

New Crater Formed

RED BLUFF, Calif.—A new crater has broken out on the east side of Lassen peak, according to reports received here late today from mountain points. The volcano showed unusual activity today, emitting dust and smoke which obscured the crater from view early this afternoon.

FOSTER TRIAL FOR COMMUNISM WILL OPEN ON MONDAY

Judge Refuses Change of Venue from St. Joseph Court

TEN MORE REDS GIVE UP TO STAND TRIAL

Rose Pastor Stokes and Other Leaders Surrender

ST. JOSEPH, Mich.—By The Associated Press.—William Z. Foster, alleged leader in the communist party—the underground representative in America of the Third International of Moscow—will go on trial in circuit court here Monday charged with violating the Michigan law against criminal syndicalism.

Judge Charles White Saturday overruled a motion for a change of venue, made by Frank P. Walsh of New York, attorney for Foster and others arrested after Michigan and federal authorities raided an alleged convention of the communist party held in the lonely sand dune country twenty miles south of St. Joseph, on August 22 last. Twenty-two persons have been awaiting trial as a result of that raid, but the state elected to try Foster first.

Ten More Give Up

The list of twenty-two defendants was increased to thirty-two Saturday when ten men and women, led by Rose Pastor Stokes, whose sentence of ten years in Leavenworth for obstructing the draft was commuted by President Wilson, walked into court and surrendered. The ten are among fifty-six persons who are alleged to have attended the convention, but who had never been arrested, although warrants were issued for them in September.

Besides Rose Stokes, the ten who surrendered included: Robert Minor, New York cartoonist and writer, son of a Texas jurist, who was deported from France after the armistice for preaching radicalism to the American soldiers.

Edgar Owens, Moline, Ill., recently released from Joliet prison on a pardon signed by Governor Small. Owens was convicted in Illinois with William Bross Lloyd and others under a statute similar to the Michigan law against syndicalism.

First Test of Law

The trial of Foster, who came into prominence in 1919 as the leader of the unsuccessful nation-wide steel strike, is expected to attract nation-wide attention as the first test in the middle west of war time anti-revolutionary laws since the war spirit has died down.

The state charges that the defendants met secretly to plot and advocate the overthrow of the government of the United States by force.

To this the defense is preparing to the claim that if anything illegal was done at that convention it was suggested, encouraged and carried out by the government itself through spies and agents provocateurs planted by the department of justice and the W. J. Burns detective agency in the communist ranks.

ANOKA, Minn.—Aid of the Minneapolis and Duluth police was enlisted, Saturday night by H. R. Thurston, Anoka county coroner, in an effort to solve the death of a girl baby whose body was found at the intersection of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroad tracks, about a mile and a half east of Coon Creek late Friday. The body is believed to have been thrown from a Minneapolis-Duluth train. Dr. C. E. Gales, who performed an autopsy, said the baby had been choked to death.

LONDON.—An Athens dispatch to the Central News reports the sinking of the transport Alexandre, which was bringing men on leave from Keranthini to Piraeus. The sinking was due to an explosion and 150 men are reported drowned.

Reuter's Athens correspondent reports the sinking of a tugboat in the service between Salamis and Piraeus, due to a great storm. Two hundred persons are reported drowned.

ATHENS. — By the Associated Press.—A small steamer with 400 persons aboard, bound from Salamis for Piraeus, ran into a heavy gale and foundered. About 200 lost their lives, the others being saved, with difficulty. The passengers consisted for the most part of naval officers and men from the garrison at Salamis, who were proceeding to Athens for the week-end. Rear Admiral Voucaris, minister of marine, has gone to Salamis to hold an inquiry.

THREE MORE RAILROAD DEPOTS TAKEN OVER BY THE FRENCH

Poincare Going to Brussels to Confer on Occupation of Germany

BERLIN.—The French Saturday occupied the railway stations of Recklinghausen, Castrop, Gunnigersbach and other points to the south, according to a special dispatch to Berlin newspapers.

Correspondents of Berlin newspapers in the Ruhr say they are reliably informed that the French intend to begin operating all the coal mines in the Ruhr on March 15 with the aid of Polish labor.

Military to Occupy Mines

Reports from Gelsenkirchen are to the effect that all the mines are to be militarily occupied, and that troop movements for this purpose are already under way. The commission of engineers which accompanied the first troops entering the Ruhr is said to have been enlarged by fifty members.

According to one correspondent, a group of French commissioners appeared Saturday at the offices of a Gelsenkirchen company's foundries near Recklinghausen and demanded permission to visit the plant. They were accompanied by troops with tanks and when the demand was rejected forced their way in under a guard with fixed bayonets and made a three-hour inspection. All the workmen in the foundries ceased work when the commissioners entered. The visitors are said to have had with them a detailed map of the works.

THREE ALARMS FOR NORTH SIDE FIRE "BALL UP" FIREMEN

Incorrect Address Over Phone and Two Box Alarms Causes Excitement

When gasoline was poured into a kerosene cook stove at 1007 Charles street, Saturday afternoon an explosion occurred that burned Joseph Fiedler, 65 years old, about the face and hands and resulted in three alarms being turned in that had the fire department virtually running circles for several minutes.

A telephone call telling of a fire at 110 Pearl street came into central fire station. Immediately the apparatus started for Pearl street. There was no fire at the Pearl street address, a mistake had been made in giving the address to the firemen, so No. 3 station's apparatus started back to headquarters. In the meantime two alarms had been "pulled" from boxes at St. Paul and Liberty streets and Caledonia and St. James streets. Already No. 2 and No. 4 companies were on their way to the fire. No. 3 company had come up from the south side to "cover" central station and arrived at headquarters at the same time No. 1's returned. Learning where the fire really was No. 1 then dashed to the north side to "cover" No. station on St. Cloud street, No. 3 was then enabled to get into No. 1's station. No. 5 had already reached No. 2's station and was on duty.

The fire in the Charles street house was soon extinguished, with nominal damage. George Weber, a switchman at Camp 20, on the Milwaukee road, had been attracted to the fire before the firemen arrived and had carried Mr. Fiedler out of the house. When the police arrived Mr. Fiedler was taken to central police station. Dr. Townsend was called to attend the burns.

It was reported at police headquarters that a revolver was found on Mr. Fiedler. He is being held at police headquarters to await possible action on the part of his son.

DRY RAIDS ON NORTH SIDE

NELSON, WISCONSIN, HEADS PROGRESSIVE BLOC IN THE HOUSE

Forty Organize to Study Proposed Legislation in Recess

EXPECT TO DOMINATE NEXT CONGRESS WHEN IT MEETS

Have Balance of Power With Forty in Group

By BETTY PRUETT FARRINGTON

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Announcement was made by Representative John M. Nelson, of Madison, today of the organization of about forty Republican members of the next House of Representatives into a cohesive group for the advancement of progressive legislation.

Mr. Nelson revealed that at a recent meeting he was chosen chairman of the Progressive Republican group, Representative Roy Woodruff, of Michigan, who with Representative Johnson of South Dakota, opened fire on Attorney eGneral Daugherty for alleged failure to prosecute war fraud cases, was chosen secretary.

According to Mr. Nelson the insurgents, whose number he expects to increase, will devote their time in the summer to the study of legislation desired. He said they would meet on November 15 for final plans on the organization of the new House.

Forty in Group

The forty odd Republicans which have joined the group have pledged themselves to oppose "reactionary legislation" proposed by the Administration and pave the way for the enactment of "progressive legislation."

For several weeks prior to the adjournment of the Sixty-eighth Congress on March 4, the group led by Mr. Nelson has been busily although quietly working in the House. The response received has been highly pleasing to them.

While the Wisconsin delegation alone would hold sufficient strength to wield the balance of power, the addition of some thirty additional members not only from the Middle West, but from the Far West and conservative centers of the East, will, in Mr. Nelson's opinion, make certain the domination of the next House by a progressive group.

Although the Progressives are avoiding "personal politics," according to Mr. Nelson, they plan to put forward Representative Henry Allen Cooper, of Racine, as Speaker of the next House.

They have found considerable opposition to the re-election of Speaker Gillett who has always been identified with the most conservative element of the East. On the Republican leadership of the next House they have reached no decision.

Neither Representative Longworth of Ohio, nor Representative Graham, of Illinois the two candidates for Floor Leader have aroused much enthusiasm among the Progressives.

To Change Rules

One of the first objects of the Progressives will be passage of the resolution offered in the last Congress by Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, for the appointment of a special committee to investigate modification of the rules of the House.

They feel that the domination which was once exercised by Speaker Cannon about ten years ago has been transferred to the steering committee of the House.

"We are avoiding personal politics," said Mr. Nelson, "It is our aim to concentrate on progressive legislation. We mean to use our strength to block selfish measures and to open the way for progressive laws.

"In order to accomplish this end we must receive representation on the important committees. We do not propose to permit the stacking of committees against progressive legislation. This has been done long enough, and we have the strength to prevent it now.

"We will work in the Republican party where we belong, but we will not allow the reactionaries to run away with the control. We want to receive the recognition in matters of legislation that we are entitled to."

"I believe that the country is with us and that the summer will find even more members anxious to swing in behind the progressive cause. Reactionarism is sinking slowly and surely into the back ground."

BELGIAN POLICE IN 50 MORE RAIDS IN COMMUNISTS' PLOT

BRUSSELS.—By The Associated Press.—A more important turn was given to the police investigation of the Belgian communist plot today when fifty more raids were made an communist headquarters and homes in various cities throughout the country. The authorities announce that they expect to substantiate by the evidence now being collected their theory that the Belgian communists were pledged to execute secret resolutions adopted at the last communist congress for destruction of the present form of government.

TOO MUCH POW-WOW MAKES BAD FARMERS OF INDIANS SAYS U. S.

WASHINGTON.—An educational campaign designed to curb the growing tendency of certain Indian tribes to devote their time to ceremonial meetings, pow-wows and dances has been undertaken by the Bureau of Indian affairs. Circular letters, sent to all Indian agents, giving the details and scope of the campaign, has led to the erroneous impression in some sections that it was proposed to ban the tribal dances, Commissioner C. H. Burke said, but he denied that the bureau had any such intention.

"The move is directed against a growing evil among certain tribes of the northwest country which the government has just succeeded in interesting in farming and stock raising," he explained. "We found that the frequency of these ceremonies, some extending a week or more, was steadily increasing to the evident hurt of the tribe, physically and economically."

TENTATIVE PACT IS REACHED ON DEBTS FINS OWE AMERICA

Terms of Agreement are Identical With Those Given Great Britain by United States

FINNISH GOVERNMENT BORROWED $10,000,000; 63 YEARS TO PAY

Terms and Language of British Agreement are Being Studied

WASHINGTON. — The American debt funding commission, considering two foreign debt questions Saturday negotiated a tentative program for refunding the debt of Finland to the United States and put the recently negotiated agreement with Great Britain in the final stage preparatory to going into operation.

Formal approval was given by the commission to the debenture which embodies the terms of the agreement with the British government and which already has been accepted by congress. The contractual document now will be submitted to the British government for a perusal of its phraseology and suggestion as to a date for the formal signing.

Same as British Terms

Finland was accorded terms for the repayment of her debt almost identical with those given Great Britain; extension of time for payment over a period of sixty-two years with interest at three percent for the first ten years and three and one-half percent thereafter. Interest on the debt was fixed at the rate of four and one-half percent to December 15 last, when the three percent rate was made effective.

The Finnish government has borrowed approximately ten million dollars but repayments have brought the amount down by almost one million dollars and the refunding program tentatively agreed upon calculates a refunding on the basis of nine million dollars. The difference of around $150,000 will be paid in cash.

Dr. Axel Astrom, the Finnish minister, who was present at Saturday's meeting, announced that he would cable the terms of the agreement to his government at once. The Finnish parliament is in session and Dr. Astrom suggested that it would be able to act on the plan before adjournment two weeks hence. The settlement cannot be finally consumed, however, until it is accepted by congress which is not scheduled to meet again until December. It is the intention of the treasury, however, to go ahead with details of the plan and have it ready for the affixing of signatures if it is approved.

Retire British Bonds Yearly

The action on the British settlement constituted only a formal study of the terms and the language used in setting forth the requirements to which the British government agrees. The commission, however, decided definitely that the bonds to be turned over to this government by Great Britain would be drawn so as to make it possible for the British government to retire one each year. The amount of each bond is left for the actuaries to determine, depending on the amount required to be paid in the specific periods.

Treasury officials expressed gratification at the near conclusion of the British contract.

FAMOUS CYCLIST DIES

NEWARK, N. J.—Ernest Pye, maker of bicycle tires and former idol of bike race fans in the Antipodes, died Saturday after a long illness. Pye was well known to the six-day race fans in this country. He was born in Australia, coming to the United States years ago with a team of champions.

FOUR ARRESTS ARE MADE; STILLS AND LIQUOR ARE TAKEN

State and Federal "Dry Army" Arrest John Dore, John Whipple and Al Miller

GEORGE SMITH IS ARRESTED IN BARN IN STATE STREET

Mill Street Saloons Inspected; no Liquor Found in Any of them

THE flying "army" of the state and federal dry agents who blew into town suddenly Friday evening devoted considerable time to the lower end of the north side Saturday evening, that netted a quantity of moonshine, two stills and three arrests, the prisoners being held in the city jail and booked as "federal prisoners."

A sortie into State street also was made by the dry "army," that resulted in another arrest and the confiscation of about 10 gallons of liquor.

Raid on French Island

Besides the arrests made on the lower north side, a house on French Island, south of the Milwaukee bridge, was raided and two stills confiscated. An arrest is expected in that case in the next 24 hours.

Those under arrest are John Doro and John Whipple, star state witnesses in the Dooley murder trial, and Al Miller. They were arrested, it is understood, at Al Miller's home on Mill street, near St. Andrews street. A quantity of liquor also was seized in the place.

Saloons Searched

In addition to this raid, the "dry army" also searched two saloons on Mill street but failed to find any liquor. They also searched a house that is not completed nor occupied as yet but failed to find any stills or liquor.

A search of a barn on State street, between Eighth and Ninth street, revealed about 10 gallons of liquor and George Smith was arrested and the liquor confiscated. Several hours after his arrest Smith was released on bonds.

A story was going the rounds downtown Saturday that when the "dry army" was raiding saloons at Third and Vine streets news of their presence in the neighborhood reached saloons a block or two away. The proprietor of one of those saloons decided to call up the Bangor bar and notify the proprietor Rudolph Harder of the proximity of the "dry" raiders.

Agent Answers Phone

It happened that the raiders were in the Bangor saloon at the time. One of the federal agents.—there were both state and federal men in the raiding party—answered the phone. He was cautioned to be careful by the voice over the wire as the dry agents were making raids in the neighborhood. The federal agent asked who was speaking and the person at the other end of the wire told him. Whereupon the federal man thanked him for the tip. Later, the person who called up with the warning was given a bad half hour or so by the federal agent.

MISSING VIROQUA MAN, SEEN HERE, IS IN MINNEAPOLIS

John Quick, Who Disappeared While on Business Trip to City Found by Salvation Army

John H. Quick who left his home in Viroqua on February 5th for a short business trip to La Crosse and mysteriously disappeared has been located and is now in Minneapolis.

On Friday morning a telegram from the Salvation Army Rescue Mission at Minneapolis was received by Quick's family in Viroqua, that Mr. Quick had been picked up on the streets of Minneapolis in a half demented condition. Mrs. Quick immediately left for Minneapolis.

It is not known how soon, Mr. and Mrs. Quick will return home, as it will probably be necessary to seek immediate medical aid for Mr. Quick. The merchant left his home in Viroqua over a month ago with the intentions of spending a day in La Crosse and the family have been anxiously searching for him since.

COUNTERFEITERS AND HORSE THIEVES HERE IN THE EARLY DAYS

BAD CHARACTERS MAKE NECESSARY DRASTIC ACTION

Porter of Viroqua also Tells of Most Devout Man of Pioneer Days

BY C. V. PORTER

Prior to the year 1849, Brower, a trapper, settled on the river bank near the old wood yard half a mile below Victory. One day early in winter a fur buyer came and bought Brower's pelts and paid for it in bright silver coin to the amount of some twenty dollars. Brower later suspected the money was counterfeit and took it up to William Tippets at Tippets Landing, who told him it was of no value and sent him to the nearest constable, Legrand Sterling, earliest white settler of what is now Vernon county, who, with Harvey Sterling, his father, lived eight miles east of Victory, near the Retreat of today. Brower lost his way and slept in a straw stack near the Sterling farm.

Arrived at the Sterling cabin Brower explained his mission and William T. Sterling of Mr. Sterling who was there, said to his brother Leo, "There are two justices of the peace in Bad Ax county. You go with Brower to Judge La Force on Coon Prairie for your warrant for I suspect that the other justices is in league with the counterfeiters."

Counterfeiters Flee

Judge La Force was not at home and the men returned to the home of the other justice and told him what they wanted. "Go right in and have dinner and get warm and we will attend to the business." Billy Sterling told me a boy was put astride a horse and sent down the Bad Ax valley and when the constable arrived the counterfeiters had gone a short time before. They had a camp on a terrace in the Bad Ax valley.

Brower had a garden on the river bank and the gophers were destroying his corn and he mixed poison in the only kettle he had and failed to clean it, and got a poisonous meal which killed him.

Toughs on Boats

There was a pretty tough element along the great river fifty years ago. In 1871 there were two floating houses of ill fame frozen into the ice between De Soto and Columbus, a mile or two below Lansing. Counterfeit money was alleged to have been passed by the keeper of the lower "gunboat" and the United States marshal from La Crosse called on him. The keeper came with a knife toward the marshal who shot him dead. Next day the inmates took De Soto stage for La Crosse. I remember the fine when dollar Peters, the De Soto-La Crosse stage driver, who carried large sums of money, also carried a gun heavily armed to protect it. The early settlers had to contend with horse thieves every little while, but at Retreat they formed an anti horse-thief association with hundreds of members and appointed runners, desperate fellows, armed to the teeth, who had an understanding among themselves that a horse thief once caught up with could surrender after he was pumped full of lead more safely than before. Very few horses have been stolen in western Wisconsin since that organization was formed, more than fifty years ago.

Ezekiel Tainter

About a dozen miles south of Viroqua over the line in Crawford county, Ezekiel Tainter came in 1846 and built a long log cabin across the road from the present Tainter dwelling.

Zeke had come to Prairie du Chien, I believe, in 1836, from Vermont originally, and for a time had a contract to supply Fort Crawford garrison with meat. Zeke was a devout Methodist and the family altar was erected before the house was shingled. He was the father of Captain Andrew Tainter of Menomonee, millionaire lumberman, who left home early and went into the lumber regions, and who gave the beautiful Mabel Tainter memorial building to that city. Andrew followed the creed of his father and was a staunch Unitarian.

Zeke was strong on devotional exercises. He had the whole family on their knees three times a day. Aunt Lucinda Williams Sherwood of Towerville, who boasted she was descended eight generations from Roger Williams, told me the story of her visit to Mrs. Tainter's to spend the afternoon in the early day. They had dinner and Zeke read a short Bible lesson, the family knelt and Zeke prayed. One of the big boys who knelt, giggled and Zeke who had one eye open for the fellow, just as he closed his prayer, threw the chair in front of him at the boy, who managed to jump out of the open door before the chair reached him.

Congressman O. B. Thomas of Prairie du Chien told me that when a boy he wandered from home and night found him at the hospitable Tainter cabin, the latch string of which always hung out. Bed time came and Zeke said, "Stop this talking and laughing; there's got to be some praying done." Anson Tainter, Zeke's nephew, lived there then and Zeke said, "Anse' it's your turn to pray." Anse prayed, "Lord, make me more kind, more humane." "Yes, yes, Lord, do; Tom and Jerry (the oxen) will be so glad," Zeke put in.

Zeke's house was the early meeting house for the whole valley for miles. It was from that home that Rev. Mr. Knibbs, pioneer preacher, and Oxford graduate, started on horseback one winter morning in the late fifties for Prairie du Chien. A snow storm came and it grew terribly cold. He lost his way in the woods down the Kickapoo valley and wandered two days, froze his feet and had a foot amputated.

At a prayer meeting in a pioneer cabin one night, a brother prayed, "O, Lord, come down and be in our midst." "Yes, yes, Lord, come down, come right down through the roof, I'll pay for the shingles," shouted Zeke. He had a stiff leg and whenever he went to a neighbor's house to a prayer meeting he began singing some reds away and went into the house singing. Zeke lies buried under a costly monument at Menomonee and his father's bones over which Zeke had raised many a crop of corn, repose beside him. Zeke was one of those joyous, happy, whole-souled Methodists of sixty years ago, noisy fellows in prayer meeting, who have vanished and the churches of today are unfilled. There is little of the excitement of the early day in the worship of today.

HUSBAND SUES

Threats of a counter-suit were made by Marjorie Prevost, film actress, following filing of a suit for divorce by her husband, Albert Lloyd Furgon, engineer. Among his charges are that she insisted on lying abed in the morning and was an untidy housekeeper.

BOYS LASHED BY MOB

TULSA, Okla.— Two 17-year-old youths were seized here Wednesday night and taken to a grove outside the city where the lash was applied to their backs. The victims of the flaggers were George Price and Fred Sanders.

A score of men were gathered at the whipping place the youths told the police. The boys said their abductors questioned them about a party they attended several weeks ago and accused them of causing a 17-year-old girl to become intoxicated.

"An oily skin is especially liable to infection"

There is constant danger in an oily skin

IF your skin has the habit of continually getting oily and shiny —you cannot begin too soon to correct this condition.

A skin that is too oily is not only unattractive in itself—it is especially liable to infection from dust and dirt, and thus encourages the formation of blackheads and other skin troubles that come from outside infection.

You can overcome excessive oiliness by using every night the following treatment:

FIRST cleanse your skin by washing in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and luke-warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp.

Now, with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly —always with an upward and outward motion.

Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

Within a week or ten days after commencing this treatment you will notice a marked improvement in your complexion.

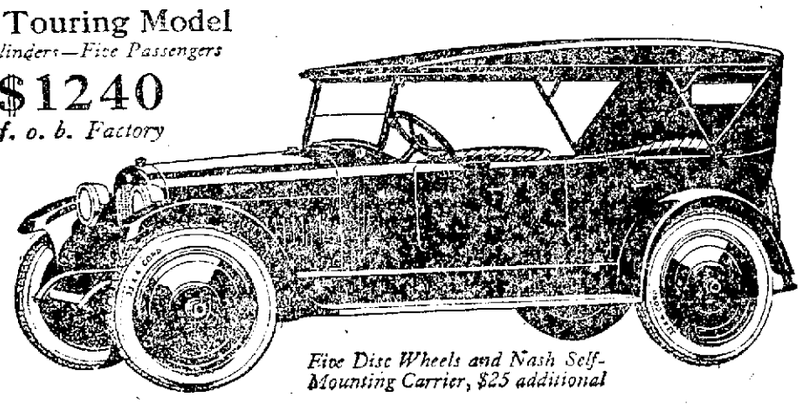

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks. Woodbury's also comes in convenient 3-cake boxes.

All Over the Planet

IN the Chicago Tribune, leader of the isolationists, appears a cartoon representing the angel of peace afloat on an icefloe in a sea of perpetual warfare, with the breaking up of Europe into small nations represented as continually narrowing her foothold. A true cartoon. The salvation of civilization depends upon the achievement of some form of organization of the nations by which they may hang together despite internal and external stresses. Continual war will destroy modern civilizations, as it has destroyed those of the past. Strange that a newspaper which can see this truth in relation to Europe cannot see that it has its application in this country. Under modern conditions civilization and peaceful prosperity exist either world-wide or not at all. Perhaps we feel the convulsions of international disorder a little later than those nations in which they start. But they spread to us eventually. It took three years for the world war to reach out and engulf us. But it did, at last. Europe's confusion and distress since the peace has proved a failure is beginning to react upon us, and the strength of the reaction will grow. Isolationists are simply doing the foolish ostrich-trick of burying their heads in the sand to avoid danger. The danger is all the greater for the refusal to face it and take proper measures.

Specialists

ABOUT 2400 years ago Herodotus, the Greek historian, wrote this about the Egyptians: "The art of medicine among them is distributed thus: Each physician is a physician of one disease and of no more. And the whole country is full of physicians, for some profess themselves to be physicians of the eyes, others of the head, others of the teeth, others of the affections of the stomach, and others of the more obscure ailments."

And here we've been going along imagining that we have something new when we say that we are living in an age of specialists. Every age is an age of specialists, and always has been—even in cave-man days when each clan had its champion spear thrower. The key to wealth and fame is specialization, doing some one thing better than others can.

Why Not?

A WIDOW in Minneapolis promised to marry J. H. Buckler, a traveling man, and then reneged after he had taken out the marriage license. With a courage unknown to most of conventional mankind, Mr. Buckler took her into court, and the jury spread $500 "heart-balm" on his wounded feelings. Why not? We now hold that women are equal citizens with men in this republic, and the doctrine of equal pay for equal work steadily gains ground. Why is not a jilted man as sorrowful an object as a jilted woman, and just as fit a subject for the curative application of a long-green poultice? Mr. Buckler's case is a start in the right direction. The next step forward will come when some man whose wife divorces him sues for alimony. Fiat justitia, ruat coelum!

Nothing like the prospects of quick money for revealing how many different ways there are of being crooked.

Gethsemane-Suffering-Victory

Mark 14:32.

By REV. SAMUEL H. ROTH,
English Lutheran Church.

GETHSEMANE has a meaning peculiar to itself. Its sound brings to mind struggle. Many other important places of Bible history are more frequently mentioned, but is there one more loved? Why this significance? The soul struggle of the "one mediator between God and man," who bore the burden of others, explains it. But were it the mere history of struggle, there would be no such memory as Christian people love to cherish.

Rev. S. H. Roth

Many persons suffer and bear untold hardship and others are not particularly sympathetic because the sum total of such suffering is little beyond a personal discomfort.

But a totally different idea is here conceived. His suffering was not through any personal misdeed, nor for any personal end—it was for others; and the victory gained was of immeasurable worth to others. Spiritual victories give lasting meaning to persons and even places.

In vain men have tried to solve the mystery connected with this supreme picture of Divine love but they have overlooked the fact that there are illustrations of God's infinite mercy which are too deep and holy for the human mind to comprehend.

Men love to speak of high ideals and often plan generously for works of altruism, but when unquestioned loyalty is found lacking in those expected to be ardent supporters, their spirit becomes broken and their plans fall earthward. This is the practical evidence of the missing link—the one who makes "God and sinners reconciled."

These Scripture verses show a picture of humanity. In company with two other good men was one—Peter—who boasted a short time before of his willingness and ability to share with his Lord the full cup of bitterness. When the hour of test arrives, where is this brave man? Asleep! And when the crucial hour prepares the way for the Christ's trial at court, the companions have forsaken Him and fled and Peter, fearful of his own welfare, swears, with an oath, "I know not the man."

In contrast, witness persevering love—infinite in duration and extent—ceaseless in activity, showing greater and greater strength—approaching a mighty climax. With undaunted step, He approaches His agonizing end, but remembering mercy over every foot of the way. He prays for His weak companions. He pauses to heal the smitten ear of an enemy. Then within the pale of an angry mob, He pleads for the safety of His friends, who have already forsaken Him.

When the final hour has struck and the hosts of evil have displayed the powers and spirit of hell; and their thirst of blood has reached a climax; and their seeming victory has been won; then He turns to the penitent thief, saying: "Today shalt thou be with me in Paradise."

Surely "we have not a high priest that cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but one that hath been in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." This is Jesus Christ, "the same yesterday, today and forever."

CHURCH NEWS

Furnished by the Church News Association

American Legion chaplains in several states have issued appeals to Legion posts and to pastors of churches to arrange services on Sunday, April 8, to be attended by members of posts in a body, and by former service men and their families. In cities where services are held on week day noons, appeal is made that services be held on Friday, April 6. One aim is to create, if possible, an American Legion Sunday that shall not interfere with Memorial Day, whether dates be those of the North or the South, and that will suggest, not memory of the dead, but ambitions and ideals of the living. The date suggested is the Sunday falling nearest to April 6, the anniversary of the declaration of war by the United States against Germany. It is also the aim of the Legion chaplains to encourage volunteer work for the public good on the part of service men and all other men, comparable in some degree to the sacrifice for that good made by service men in France, and by many men and women in France and in America. A number of the state chaplains have urged preachers at such Legion services as may be held to emphasize this sacrifice on the part of everybody today. It is known that the plans put forth by the state chaplains have the full sympathy of the national Legion leaders.

A Catholic conference on industrial problems is projected by Catholics in the United States, on lines of the famous Catholic Social Week of Europe. Late in June, in some city in the Middle West not yet chosen, leaders in every field of industrial life, if Catholics, representing both capital and labor, and students of economic and industrial problems, will assemble. The basis of the conference will be an encyclical issued several years ago by Pope Leo XIII, wherein were treated at length conditions of workingmen as seen by the Vatican. Right now there are starting in a number of cities local conferences in preparation for the June one.

More than 250,000 young people have competed each year for the past three years for the $4,000 scholarship offered by H. S. Firestone of Akron, Ohio, for the best essay on the subject "The Influence of Highway Transport upon the Religious Life of My Community." High school students are the competitors. Essays may not exceed 700 words in length, and are to be submitted by students to school principals or designated teachers not later than May 1, 1923 for the fourth competition. The contests are conducted by the Firestone Scholarship board in co-operation with extension departments of leading universities of state departments of public instruction. The main prize is worth $4,000 and goes to one person. Last year other prizes were offered by states, including other scholarships, gold medals and loving cups, and it is expected that the number of such consolation prizes will be increased this year.

THE THIRD MONTH ON THE RUHR

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS

WASHINGTON. — Superficially there is little change to note in the Franco-German conflict as it enters its third month. Yet, under the surface the political as well as the economic disintegration is unmistakable. The best evidence of this is to be discovered in the press dispatches which daily record an increasing number of cases of disorder and even of shooting. Here is the true barometer.

The world, however, is slowly coming to recognize certain facts. In the first place, there is a pretty general appreciation of the truth that there remains little if any chance of the actual payment of reparations in the future. In a word, the time has about passed when the Germans will be able, even if they should suddenly acquire good faith and make honest efforts, to make money payments in any early or useful time.

Have the French then, with the Belgians, by occupying the Ruhr, abolished reparation payments? No, for the fact is that while they refrained from such action the Germans continued to evade payment. In a word, when the Germans could pay something—and this was the situation from the armistice onward, they evaded. Now, when force is applied to compel payment the capacity for paying has about disappeared.

The bottom fact is that from 1914 to 1923 the German has been waging the war by different methods. He has never at any moment abandoned his original purpose to destroy France as a great power. While he was able he sought to attain this objective by every conceivable act of violence. Having destroyed as much as was possible and being compelled to make a military surrender, he has sought to preserve the effects of his devastations by the evasion of all reparations payments.

You state the thing quite accurately if you say that the German first endeavored to ruin France by devastation and then, when he had achieved the maximum of destruction, strove to protect this achievement by evading all reparations and thus putting upon French shoulders the crushing burden of reconstruction.

One of the commonest of American misapprehensions is that the German gave up the fight on the day of the armistice. He did nothing of the sort. On the contrary he merely shifted the character of his offensive. He had wrecked northern France according to plan. His purpose had been by thus ravaging industrial France to erase her as a first class power. Unless he were made to restore the ruins, unless he were compelled to bear a portion of the costs of his devastations, he would still accomplish his purpose.

You must see that the end of the fighting and the military decision had little or nothing to do with the actual winning and losing of the conflict so far as the French and the Germans were concerned. France had lost and Germany won the conflict materially, at the moment when the armistice came, for France had suffered incalculable losses of wealth and capital, as a result of invasion and devastation, while Germany had suffered little on either score.

For the French the problem was to find a way, through the terms of the treaty of peace, to win the war, that is to defeat the German purpose which was to destroy France. This way could only be found by forcing Germany to pay adequate reparations. Germany, on the contrary, had France ruined and her strategy, if she desired to continue, was to evade payment and thus perpetuate her own triumph in French fields.

All that has followed has been the grim, persistent, never ending effort of the Germans to preserve their victory and of the French to escape their defeat—and I am talking of material things, not the outward circumstances which are disclosed in the surrender of German military strength, but of those details which are disclosed in any examination of the conditions of the two countries at the close of the struggle.

This conflict, this prolongation of the conflict, had several possibilities. France might, for example, win her fight and make Germany pay. Germany might triumph in her policy of evasion and thus defeat France. But it was equally possible that German resistance might lead to a French invasion which would completely wreck the German industrial machine. And it was just as certain that if France did resort to this invasion, there was every reason to believe that France would lose her last chance to get money payments.

* * * *

All things considered, what has happened is this: Germany has resisted payment of adequate reparations until France has been driven in desperation to resort to the invasion of the Ruhr. But the invasion of the Ruhr has finally disorganized the German industrial system, already severely strained by the policy of evasion. Now the French cannot hope for any money at once; they can hardly hope for much in any useful time.

We face this situation, then. France is fiscally bankrupt. She was always condemned to bankruptcy if she undertook to rebuild her ruins with her own resources and without German contributions. She has spent $5,000,000,000 in this task alone and received practically nothing on this account. Unless every sign fails, her whole financial edifice must come crashing down within a brief period of time.

But while she has not collected money and cannot now hope to get much, she has laid hands upon a valuable asset of Germany. She can, come what may, when she has completed her organization of it, draw from the Ruhr upwards of 20,000,000 tons of coal annually, that is, enough for her own uses, for those of Belgium, and in part for those of Italy.

If she gives up the coal regions she can get nothing in return. If she holds them she will hardly get much more than the coal. But if she does hold them then Germany must come to her, for unless Germany can draw its coal rations from the Ruhr, there is an end of the German industrial machine, there, in reality is an end of that great German machine which was developed in the last forty years.

As long as the French hold the Ruhr Germany can neither win the last war nor make a new one. Her policy of evasion will remain relatively successful, so far as bringing about French fiscal ruin, but she will draw no profit from this success, herself, because her own ruin will be at last even more complete, her own industrial plant, her own coal supplies will be in the hands of the enemy.

* * * *

At the close of the war Germany might have adopted the policy of France after 1870. She might have undertaken to pay what was demanded of her, to fulfill in good faith and to abandon all plans for immediate revenge, which would provoke French apprehension and lead to French action. If she had done this, she would have been insured British protection against French violence. Britain, Italy, Belgium, all these states were more interested in the economic recovery of Germany than her ruin.

French statesmen, moreover, even if they had preferred German ruin to German recovery, would have been compromised before their own publics by the fact that Germany was paying and that these payments were shifting the burden from the shoulders of the French peasant. If a few Frenchmen wanted the destruction of Germany, the mass of Frenchmen wanted a reduction of taxes.

If she had chosen this course Germany would have saved herself. Her economic recovery would have been rapid because her means of production were not impaired. More and more all of her enemies, even France, would have been interested in her progress. American capital would inevitably have been embarked upon German industrial crafts and American policy would have been influenced by this investment.

But Germany did nothing of the sort. She adopted a policy of nonfulfillment and the real reason the British have been unable with every desire and interest engaged to do something to save Germany has been because they never could make a case for Germany. German bad faith, German evasion, German strategy always put legal and moral justification alike in French hands. If the French asked too much, it was impossible to argue for a reduction of their demands while Germany made not the smallest real effort to pay anything, save under duress.

Now, as I see it, we have come to the end of four years of war, waged in peace, waged for purposes quite identical with those which were dominant during the war. Once more, too, we have had peace without victory in the material sense. France has not got her reparations, she is fiscally bankrupt, just as Germany planned she should be. So far German evasion has triumphed.

But on the other hand Germany now finds her most valuable single industrial asset in French hands, while the consequences of a long campaign of evasion has been the destruction of her own fiscal system, the disruption of her economic organization. She hoped to evade payments to France until she had got on her own feet again and was strong enough to face France on the battlefield. She has evaded the payments, but she no longer has any chance of facing France.

Inevitably, now, we must enter a third phase of this Franco-German war. Both countries are already financially wrecked. Both countries are now totally incapable of paying their foreign obligations, which for Germany mean reparations and for France foreign debts. But there is now a marked difference, while Germany is on the edge of a complete ruin, France is compromised only with respect of her governmental finances.

* * * *

Today the French treasury is empty in the face of enormous obligations, because of the monies spent in reconstructing the devastated areas, but the areas have been reconstructed and the fields and the factories are on a productive basis. But with French armies in the Ruhr German factories are paralyzed, the German industrial mechanism is coming to a standstill. France can feed herself from her own fields, Germany must buy her food abroad and pay for it in coal, in manufactured articles. And she can neither manufacture nor export.

Let us agree at once that there is going to be no victor in this long Franco-German war. Neither nation is coming triumphantly out of the conflict. Today the single problem is which will suffer most and which recover first. First in the field and then in the peace the two antagonists have fought desperately and inflicted gaping wounds. But now in the third round, which is more nearly war than even the sort of peace we have had for four years, it lies within the power of one of the contestants to deal with the other decisively and it is no longer possible for the German to offer terms which would avert doom.

Suppose, for example, that the Germans should come forward tomorrow with a proposal for peace. They would have to surrender, they would have to sign on the dotted line. The French will not make any mistake about it this time. They will not let the Germans give their fellow countrymen the impression, as they did in 1918, that a victorious army retires unbeaten. No, the surrender will have to be complete to the point of abjection.

But once they have surrendered, what can they offer? Even before the invasion of the Ruhr the French recognized as did everyone else, that Germany would have to have a moratorium, a moratorium of from two to four years to get on her feet. But the Ruhr campaign has added tremendously to the disorganization of a Germany already needing four years of rest before she could begin payments. With some show of justice she might now ask not for four but for ten years, particularly if the Ruhr resistance continues for two or three months more.

Yet in such a case what would the French have to show for their victory? What would they have to meet their own huge financial obligations? Obviously nothing. The Ruhr would then have little positive value for the French unless they decided to stay there, unless they determined to take the Ruhr as they took the Sarre, which was, it should be recalled, taken to give France the coal which she had lost owing to the devastation of the Lens district.

* * * *

I am not talking now in terms of military operations or of political annexations. I do not refer to strategic frontiers designed for security, nor of buffer states erected for the same purpose. I am dealing solely with the financial and economic aspects of the matter. But on this basis it seems fair to conclude that France can get nothing from a German surrender now, save as she stays in the Ruhr and gets the coal her industries need.

Incidentally, of course, while she holds the Ruhr, Germany cannot organize any war of revenge, because modern war is built on coal and iron and without the Ruhr Germany would have neither in adequate quantities.

We may conclude, then, that when Germany surrenders, no basis of adjustment can be arrived at which does leave the Ruhr under French control. French civil control will remain and French soldiers will be available in case of need. Politically the Ruhr may remain attached to Germany, it may become a fraction of a new Rhine-Ruhr-Westphalia state, but economically, industrially, it will remain under French control.

In a word, German surrender now will not get the French out of the Ruhr, because the Ruhr is the only thing left which the French can regard as promising some return for their enormous losses in war. It is the single thing which can produce some wealth and at the same time give them a strangle hold upon Germany, militarily speaking. It follows, then, that, however, the occupation may be disguised, France is going to stay in the Ruhr, she is going to keep her hand on the Ruhr time without end, so far as our own generation is concerned.

Meantime we have to see that there is an end of reparations in the old sense. Germany is not going to be able to make any considerable money payment for an indefinite time, perhaps for a full ten years. The measure of the time depends largely on the length of her present resistance. Meantime France, Belgium and Italy will have to face their own financial difficulties and they are practically hopeless.

Germany is not going to pay her creditors, she can no longer pay them. Her creditors are the debtors of Britain and the United States. But in their present situation they cannot meet their domestic debts due to the war and to the costs of repairing their own ruins. They are bankrupt in advance of the demand for repayment of what we and the British have lent them if they do not get German payments, which are no longer thinkable.

One of the consequences of German surrender, then, when it comes, will be to abolish at one stroke all chance of the payments of reparations by Germany or allied debts by the continental states. The two things will be swept away together. We may refuse to recognize the facts, the British may refuse to recognize them. But the fact is that there will be no payments forthcoming and we shall be met by the very frank statement that none will be available.

As long as they insist that Germany pay them, the continental nations cannot refuse to pay us, but when at last it becomes clear that Germany cannot pay, as a result of her policy of evasion pursued to the point of prostration and ruin, then the continental nations will take a wholly different line. Moreover, and this is another American delusion to combat, the United States will not contribute anything to the situation by cancelling the loans and will not acquire any influence by doing it. That time has passed.

As long as there was a chance of Germany's paying something provided the sum of reparations were reduced to possible limits, the interallied debts offered a basis of negotiation. It was possible for the United States and Great Britain to ask the French to reduce their claims against Germany, offering in return to reduce French obligations to themselves. But now that reparations have ceased to be realities, interallied debts lack this value.

The obligations, the promises to pay of France, Italy and Belgium are worth no more today than Confederate money or Fenian bonds. They no longer have a political value, because no continental state would now feel it worth while to moderate a policy in order to purchase a cancellation. In my judgment we shall see some form of fiscal bankruptcy in France before the year is out, following closely upon German surrender and the demonstration that there is now no way of getting money from Germany in any useful time. When this time arrives, then the foreign debts, the war debts will go overboard.

Germany may delay her surrender so long that domestic disorders will precede capitulation. You may have hunger, riot and even revolution. This may lead to civil war, it may lead to a guerilla resistance to the French. This would mean the destruction of the means of German production, notably the mines. You might also have a destruction of the mines as an act of sabotage, when the Germans perceived that the French were bound to remain in the Ruhr, in any event.

But if we escape violent solutions, then we shall see German industry actually dominated by French political power. In the old days of wars, the victorious took provinces from the vanquished. The development of the modern spirit of nationalism made this increasingly unprofitable and even dangerous, as the partitions of Poland and the annexation of Alsace-Lorraine showed. On the other hand the cost of modern war made it next to impossible for the victor to avoid bankruptcy himself, solely through the payments of the vanquished.

Accordingly we seem to be approaching a middle ground, where the victor, while seizing the economic assets of a region, refrains from taking political possession, avoids annexation. This is the Sarre solution. This is now, the single avenue of escape in the Ruhr which promises anything short of the economic ruin of Europe. It means that France will have the actual possession, in a material sense, of the Ruhr region, while she will leave it politically outside her frontiers.

For the rest you may choose, as you please, between the complete political and economic prostration of Germany, which is obviously one possibility, and the political partition, the creation of one or more Rhine states actually subject to French will, which is another. What you cannot now look for, at least on the present state of the evidence, is a French evacuation of the Ruhr and restoration of the status quo either of 1914 or for that matter of 1922.

* * * *

Reparations are gone, in the old sense. Inter-allied debts, so far as the continental nations are concerned, are gone in any sense. After the war of 1914-18 both were still conceivable. After that of 1919-23 neither is thinkable. Germany made both wars, in reality they were but phases of the same conflict. Today we are on the edge at least, of a crisis in the third phase.

In this phase, unless the United States and Great Britain change sides and forcibly intervene on behalf of the German against the Frenchman the German is going to be beaten, he is going to be beaten completely and having absolutely wrecked his liquid assets, in his double war, first in attack and then in evasion, he will be compelled to submit to the foreign control of such material assets as the Ruhr for an indefinite period of time.

But it was not the French invasion of the Ruhr, which abolished reparations, the Ruhr is only a detail in the long struggle which the German began in August, 1914. We thought it was terminated in November, 1918. But it wasn't, because the German, while clinging to his purpose, only changed his methods. Now, he has only just begun to lose the war, but unless he is aided he is going to lose it beyond debate.

SLIPS HEALTH LESSONS INTO LAUGH TALKS

SHOUTS of joy from the throats of roomfuls of La Crosse youngsters at the Normal, Logan and Washburn schools, on Friday indicated the success of Professor Happy's, the vaudeville artist's, performances. Secured by the Community Council and the Red Cross and sponsored by the health department to speak to children on the subject of health and how to have it, Happy fulfilled his admirers' expectations, and carried off with him the laughing good will of hundreds of children.

Professor Happy is sent out by the American Child Health association of which Herbert Hoover is chairman, an association which publishes many health pamphlets and posters extensively used in schools. He has been enthusiastically received in towns of every size throughout the country. Health in education and education in health is his slogan.

Sense in Nonsense

The teaching of practical sense in a nonsensical way is Professor Happy's forte. As he whirls about the stage keeping up a fire of humor, he is driving home to his young audiences the need to eat vegetables and fruit, to drink milk, to get enough sleep, and other health points. Out of thirty-five minutes of entertaining and teaching ten health rules, Happy elicits over 120 laughs. If it is true that the happier a child is the better he learns, many children learned much on Friday.

One little bobbed-haired girl laughed until she cried during the whole performance, and at the last, when Happy was summarizing his health rules, she wrote them all down in neat vertical script, folded them up and stowed them away in her pocket. She will not forget 'eat vegetables, drink milk, sleep ten hours," etc.

THINGS MUSICAL

By H. MARGARET JOSTEN

Musicianly perfection, attainable only through unremitting toil and a program consisting of the greatest church music ever written, are two of the standards St. Olaf's choir has set for itself. The choir does not aspire to amuse its audience, instead it stirs great emotional and spiritual depths and produces, as anyone who has heard these singers once will agree, an imperishable memory of great beauty. The singing of those sixty boys and girls from a little Minnesota college arouses wonder and awe.

St. Olaf Choir

Almost every college and university in America has its glee club, dozens of them go on tour every year, begin their programs with a "peppy" song, end them with the college yell having pleased their audience with lilting airs and audacious drolleries. Many of these glee clubs are delightful, few of them are great. One, only, has achieved a magnificent seriousness without losing that joyous spirit of youth, has dared to put aside all trivial appeal for popularity and to aspire to a standard of success unique in the history of American schools.

The greatest honor a student in St. Olaf college can gain is membership in the choir. But once attained the young singer must work to keep his place. Daily rehearsals, concentration, drill under their inspired director, F. Melius Christiansen—these require devotion, utter faithfulness. Every song must be memorized, it is to be sung without accompaniment, without the audible giving of pitch, the work of each chorister must be as near faultless as is humanly posible.

The result is a reward in itself, their singing is sublime. They have been taught that if the choir is to achieve greatness they must work for it. Work has made them not only the greatest of college musical organizations, it has made St. Olaf Choir "the greatest of Americas choral organizations."

Mrs. Thompson To Stay in West

So great is the interest in the success future plans of Edna Gunnar Peterson-Thompson the many here who have deeply regretted the fact that La Crosse could not offer inducements to hold such an artist as she, that the following clipping from a Los Angeles paper is quoted here with full comment of what than the wish that she may always be as truly appreciated as she richly deserves to be and that she may be as beloved in her new home as she was here.

Music lovers of the Valley Hunt Club received a rare treat last evening at the piano recital of Edna Gunnar Peterson, and a thrill of pleasant surprise when Miss Peterson announced that she hoped to make Pasadena her future home.

At the conclusion of the survey, Miss Peterson immediately commenced her recital, after Mrs. William A. Brackenridge had charmingly introduced the famous little player. From the first note the large and distinguished gathering was held in exact attention. From the "Nocturne" of Chopin to "Variations in A Minor," Miss Peterson ever commanded the rapt of her audience, and it was the unanimous consensus of the critics there and a large number of these were present, that Edna Gunnar Peterson had not only won a place in the heart of Southern California music lovers, but that her technique was undeniably excellent.

Between her numbers Miss Peterson talked to her audience in a pleasing way and gave a certain intimate touch to her art that was thoroughly enjoyable. It so happened that Arthur Farwell, the author of the "Plantation Melody," which was included on Miss Peterson's program, was a supper guest of Mrs. Phillip Schuler Doane, as was also Miss Peterson, and when the melody was so graciously received a call for the author finally resulted in a modest acknowledgement by Mr. Farwell.

Perhaps the number most enjoyed was "Det Sner og det Sner," a Scandinavian piece by Hurum, which translated means that "It's snowing and snowing." One could feel the softly falling flakes and picture the scene in far-away Sweden as the concert star's fingers lightly swept over the keys.

All in all the recital was one to be long remembered by music lovers of Southern California and its reception predicts great success for Miss Peterson.

MILLINERY

Clusters of fruit, preferably cherries or grapes, are frequently seen hanging off the brims of the coarse straw hats designed for midsummer wear. For immediate wear nothing is more popular than the small cloche of felt or combination of silk and straw.

One's refinement and culture are evidenced by the gifts one selects. It's not necessary that a gift for any occasion should be costly. But it should be carefully chosen so that it will be both suitable and pleasing. Thoughtful study can make a gift more than a gift; it can be made a compliment to the recipient.

WEDDING GIFTS

1. Wedding gifts should be sent early; three weeks before the wedding is not too soon.
2. All wedding presents are sent to the bride and are her personal legal property, but in her notes of thanks she expresses the gratitude of the groom with her own.
3. The wedding invitation does not call for a present; only intimate friends send gifts to a bride being married the second time.
4. All wedding presents should be set out at the wedding reception in a manner to display each to its best advantage.
5. It's perfectly proper for a bride to exchange wedding presents when she has a greater number of any sort—say 20 salt cellars—than she can possibly use.

It's bad manners for the groom to make his wedding gift to the bride anything but jewelry or some article for her personal adornment.

ARE YOU GUILTY?

The wife of a doctor should never borrow his title. It is incorrect to say "Mrs. Doctor Brown." If one wishes to distinguish between two women of the same name, one of them being the wife of a physician, the way to do it is by calling one "Mrs. John Brown, wife of Dr. Brown." It is bad English ever to use the prefix "Mrs." with "Dr." even in cases where the woman is herself a doctor.

Still a Girl

In bloom and beauty—due to clay

By Edna Wallace Hopper

After 30 years as a stage star, I look like a girl of 19. My complexion is as soft and rosy as a debutante's. My skin is as smooth and youthful as 40 years ago.

All women marvel at my looks when they see me play young girls' parts. But my same methods brought like results to scores of my beautiful friends. So I am convinced that most women can, in these ways, multiply their beauty and preserve their bloom.

Now I have arranged so all who wish may employ the methods which did so much for me.

White new-type clay

The chief essential is complexion clay. Famous beauties have for ages used it. No woman can without it look her best. The users of facial clay stand out in any crowd.

French experts introduced clay to me some 20 years ago. But clays since then have been very much improved. The crude and muddy clays so many use today are very out-of-date.

Able scientists have been studying clays for 20 years and over. They have found that a certain mineral-laden clay brings maximum results. They have learned how to refine it by removing the useless mud. The clay I use—my Youth Clay—is white and clean and dainty.

They have found some added factors which bring multiplied results. So the oldest users of crude, old-time clays will be amazed at this new clay.

What Youth Clay does

Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs it. Thus it removes the causes of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes.

It draws the blood to the skin to nourish and renew it. The result is that rosy afterglow, that seeming new complexion. Many women, in 30 minutes, seem to drop ten years.

It firms the skin, smooths out lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. My own face shows clearly what constant use will do. I owe my fame and fortune largely to this clay.

Abandon those crude clays which I quit many years ago. See what White Youth Clay can do. It will bring you, as to me, multiplied effects.

All druggists and toilet goods dealers now supply Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay. Price, 50c and $1 per tube. Also my Youth Cream, based on lemon and strawberry. This should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. Also my Hair Youth, which brought my luxuriant hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

See what Youth Clay does. You owe that to yourself. If you are not delighted with the first tube, your dealer will return its price. I want no woman to ever lose by taking my advice.

NAVAL BASES ARE NAMED AS A PART OF DEFENSE PLANS

Navy Department to Develop Four Continental and Two "Advances" Fleet Bases

WASHINGTON. — Development within a definite period of four continentaly and two "advance" fleet bases has been decided upon by the navy department as an integral element of the national naval defense program.

The bases selected by a special board on shore establishments headed by Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, will be given a certain "priority" in development which has been determined after a study of every strategic consideration. Under this schedule they will be developed in the following order:

San Francisco—A base capable of "serving the entire fleet in all respects."

Puget Sound—A base equal to that at San Francisco and to include existing naval stations of that section.

The New York-Narragansett Bay Base—An all fleet base to include stations now located in New York harbor, Long Island sound and Narragansett Bay, with construction of a channel through Hell Gate to permit ready passage of the largest vessels from the sound to New York harbor.

Chesapeake Bay—An all fleet base to include existing stations on the lower bay.

The outlying bases are the Panama canal one and the Hawaiian islands, the board having excluded from its recommendations "all shore stations on insular possessions where, under the limitation of armament treaty, the status quo must be maintained."

THE WEEK

Blaine and Senator La Follette it is quite probable that the governor will support a plan to make military training in the University of Wisconsin elective.

The eight-hour law, establishing that principle in private industry in Wisconsin, passed the assembly by a safe vote. Other progressive legislation is being forwarded, among the bills that to place hotel women employees under the industrial commission in a manner to give them protection similar to that afforded by the state to other women workers.

During the week the assembly voted to urge congress to restore beer. The senate, however, voted by a small margin to kill the bill which would have repealed the prohibition against bars and window screens in drinking places. The matter will come up for reconsideration early in the week.

* * * *

Congress adjourned with a fair'y important record, but with much unfinished business. Senator La Follette closed the session by laying the ground to fix the price for gasoline by federal law. He warned congress that unless this were done we should soon be paying $1.00 per gallon for gasoline. Under modern conditions gasoline and bread and butter are about on a par. Gasoline amounts almost to a public utility. The matter is of the highest importance.

People who are interested in Senator La Follette's plan for the next session of congress will find an excellent statement of his program in the current Saturday Evening Post, in the form of an interview.

* * * *

Senator Irvine L. Lenroot spent Friday in Milwaukee in conference with political associates. He was on his way to Hawaii where he will spend his vacation with Mrs. Lenroot.

Senator Lenroot has had a busy and rather exceptional experience in the congress. It was only by a sensational fight in the closing hours that he was able to force through his rural credits bill, probably the most important farm measure of many years. The co-operative law in which he was largely instrumental, is another important measure. Both Senator La Follette and Senator Lenroot were disappointed in their efforts to secure a soldiers' bonus, and both believe that the next session will see the enactment of a federal law against child labor. A constitutional amendment is required.

* * * *

France has now sealed the Rhineland. The entire section is under French control, with even the English army of occupation cut off by French occupation. England is deeply stirred over this procedure, because it seems not only an affront to Great Britain, but it is seriously hampering British trade in Germany.

* * * *

There is in progress a spiritual dispute between the British and American governments over American representation at Newcastle. The American consul and vice consul were sent home upon allegation of undue influence to induce travelers to use American shipping. Secretary Hughes upon investigation, reached the conclusion that the evidence did not warrant the action of Great Britain. Therefore he has declined to send new consular officials to Newcastle. American business there is important, and we are suffering considerable loss. Were the question merely one of American dignity the affair might be termed a "tempest in a tea pot," but there is also involved a question of justice to our public officials. For that Uncle Sam would have the business affairs of a million people.

ROCHESTER, Minn. — U. S. Senator Samuel D. Nicholson of Denver, Col., accompanied by his private secretary, J. W. Donald, arrived in Rochester Saturday from Washington. WASHINGTON, D. C. — The federal farm loan board, at the conclusion Saturday of a three day conference with the federal land bank presidents gave financial aid authorized in the recent rural credits legislation by the time the spring planting begins. The government financed intermediate credit bank will be ready to make loans in about two weeks.

It was indicated that as early announcement might be made for the farm loan board regarding the methods it will employ in extending to the farmers the aid contemplated in the new laws. It was said some "rough places" might have to be smoothed out by new legislation.

ST. PAUL STOCKYARD OFFICIAL ARRESTED FOR $100,000 THEFT

Alleged to Have Embezzled Big Sum Through Loans and Faked Books

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Suit to recover $50,000 from J. M. Lindsay, former treasurer of the St. Paul Union Yards company, was filed here late Saturday by the Stock Yards company following Lindsay's arrest on a warrant charging him with misappropriating $100,000 of the company's funds.

Aside from saying "the charges are probably not as bad as they are painted," Lindsay declined to comment.

The alleged shortage was discovered by Lindsay's successor while discussing the company affair with a representative of an investment concern this morning.

Lindsay's brokerage account believed to be worth about $40,000 was immediately garnished.

Investigators allege that about two years ago Lindsay issued notes for $100,000 against the St. Paul Union Stock Yards company which he sold to an investment company. Proceeds were deposited to the company's account.

Then, it is alleged, Linsay drew two checks for $50,000 each on the account and appropriated the money to his own use, destroying the cancelled checks when they returned and drawing up a substitute bank statement. Lindsay is being held by the police.

OPERATION RESTORES CONVICT'S MIND, "LOST" FIVE YEARS

WALLA WALLA, Wash.—Time rolled back five years for Joe Straghan, a convict at the state penitentiary here, when he regained consciousness Saturday from a skull operation and picked up the thread of his existence with memory of events at Camp Fremont, Calif., in 1918. Straghan, sent to the penitentiary from Spokane on a statutory charge several months ago, was operated on by prison physicians Friday to relieve epileptic seizures to which he had been subject. They discovered that a fragment of his skull had been lodged in the brain covering, causing a pressure.

Five years ago Straghan's skull was fractured when hospital attendants dropped him from a stretcher while removing patients during a fire. When he recovered consciousness Saturday after his most recent operation his first words were:

"I hope they don't punish the boys. They didn't mean to drop me. Is the fire over?"

He declared that the last five years, during which he had been convicted and sent to the penitentiary, were a blank to him.

GRAVEDIGGERS ON STAND IN KLIMEK POISONING TRIAL

CHICAGO, Ill.—Grave-diggers followed one another to the witness stand almost in monotonous procession Friday and Saturday in the trial of Mrs. Tillie Klimek, charged with the murder of her third husband, Frank Kupczyk. An alleged confession supposed to have been made by Mrs. Klimek last October that she put a white powder on meat eaten by her first husband, Joseph Klimek, who still is ill and in a hospital, was introduced by the state.

Roman Urbanski, one of the grave-diggers, told of seeing Mrs. Klimek receive a man called after her first husband, Joseph Mitkiewicz, had gone to work.

NOT $50,000 OF "QUEER" PUT OUT BY GOTHAM GANG

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Less than $50,000 of counterfeit currency was put into circulation by the gang of counterfeiters captured in the recent New York raids, according to W. H. Moran, chief of the United States secret service.

"Since the counterfeit notes for which this gang was responsible first appeared in circulation about a year ago, the secret service has been conducting a quiet and persistent investigation and arrests have been made. These arrests have probably aggregated 100 and in the aggregate less than $50,000 of this counterfeit money has been placed in circulation," the chief asserted.

"AUTOMOBILE FOOT"

It's Cramp—Caused by Motor Improvements

Improvements have made driving so easy for the motorist that a new malady has been reported.

It's called "Automobile foot," and it's directly attributed to holding the foot too long on the accelerator.

In former years a driver had no chance to do this. A puncture or blow-out would get his foot off the throttle in a hurry. And he would have a good chance to get out and stretch himself.

But now with less fire trouble and fewer engine mishaps, the autoist has been able to continue in his seat, with his right foot in one position so long that it would become cramped. Result—"Automobile foot."

No Chance to Stretch

Of course, there may be a mishap now and then, but their correction has been reduced to so little time and effort, that the foot has hardly had a chance to rest before it finds itself back in its former position at the pedal.

And things are getting worse for the poor right foot. Inventors are busy trying to reduce tire trouble, its most saving feature, to a minimum. In fact, one inventor has come out with a plan by which punctures may occur without forcing the driver to leave his seat to repair them.

A Chicago man is responsible for this additional cause for "Automobile foot." It's a valveless inner tube, in which is a gummy mixture that flows to any opening made by a puncture and closes it up almost immediately. Somewhat like "Never-leak" in bicycle tires.

Air By Injection

That prevents further escape of air. But if the air does happen to escape altogether, the inventor has designed a sort of hypodermic needle which he sticks through casing and tube and through which the air is forced into the tube. When the needle is withdrawn the gummy substance plugs up the hole.

The "hypodermic needle" injected into casing and valveless tube for filling the latter with air.

Clever. Simple. But, oh that "Automobile foot!"

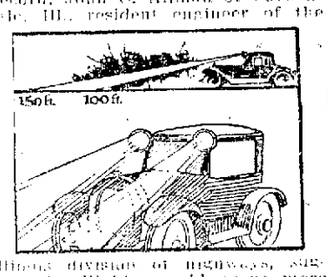

With the coming of fair weather, matters look pretty bad for your right foot if you don't get out and stretch every once in a while. Tourists, especially, should beware of long country rides without resting that foot.

CARBURETOR GOING

The car of the future will have no carburetor, says Ralph Mulford, famous racing driver. The fuel injection principle of the Diesel engine has already been tried with airplane engines. The fuel is forced into the cylinder in the right quantity just when the piston has compressed a volume of air.

HEADLIGHTS UP HIGHER

In a letter to Engineering News-Record, John C. Allman of Carbondale, Ill., resident engineer of the Illinois division of highways, suggests headlights would prove more efficient if placed at the upper corners of the windshield, as shown here, instead of their present positions. Directed downward, they could give illumination at 100 to 150 feet from the car and still keep their rays out of the eyes of oncoming motorists. One of the lights could be made movable.

BONTON FOLLIES GIVE THREE SHOWS IN ONE IN CITY

La Crosse, as a try-out station for the Bon Ton Follies show company, is due to get more than its share of vaudeville and musical comedy talent at the Majestic theater in the next two weeks. The Bon Ton company is preparing three road shows for summer work, and is breaking in all the acts that will figure in the three companies during its engagement in La Crosse. Later the company will be divided into three, but practically all of the talent that will make up three shows will be seen at the Majestic during the Bon Ton engagement.

One of the feature acts just joined up with the show is that of Billy Mashoff, Russian dancer and singer, who, with a quartet of girls, offers native Russian dances and Russian songs—an act of an entirely new type here. A number of other singers and dancers, to say nothing of comedians, it with the show which opens Sunday evening. A musical comedy is the chief piece of the show's offering, with clever vaudeville interspersed throughout after the fashion of a revue. "Three Girls in the Morning" is the opening bill.

HINES PROPOSES TO CUT RED TAPE IN VETERANS' BUREAU

"Hard Boiled" Methods of Handling Veterans' Cases to be Done Away With

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, the new director of the Veterans' bureau, said Saturday his policy for operation of the bureau would be based on elimination of "Red Tape" in handling veterans' claims; preventing of "hard boiled" methods in treatment of veterans and a speeding up of hospital work so as to give immediate relief wherever needed.

His chief work for the moment, the director said, was to co-ordinate and perfect the hospital service. Wherever new construction is going on, he said, the work would be hurried. All complaints concerning hospital facilities are being run down and corrective measures, including elimination of fire hazards, are being taken.

One very serious problem confronting him, General Hines continued, arose from complaints of under-payment of medical attendants. He said he would use whatever latitude the veterans' bureau directors had in rearranging pay schedules where it is found necessary.

UP TO RAILROAD COMMISSION TO FIX ELECTRIC RATE

Decision of Federal Judges in Injunctional Case Makes Plain the Situation

Recently Federal Judges Evans, Geiger and Luse, sitting at Madison, Wis., granted an injunction to the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company restraining the Wisconsin railroad commission from interfering with the company collecting an emergency schedule of light and power rates for Eau Claire, Chippewa Falls, La Crosse and Menomonee which the company had put into force, following the supreme court's decision setting aside the commission rate order of October, 1920, as illegal, and while awaiting the fixing of a new schedule of rates by the railroad commission based upon the findings of the supreme court.

The opinion of the three federal judges granting the prayer of the power company for the injunction is interesting in many ways, for it takes up, in an informal manner, however, some of the points involved in the decision of the supreme court on the old rate order of the commission and seems to intimate a doubt as to whether the new rates which are to be fixed by the railroad commission on the basis of the supreme court decision will be much different from what they were under the famous and outlawed rate order of October, 1920.

Light and power consumers here, however, are hopeful that the new rates, which will be determined by the commission, on or after March 27, which concludes the hearing on that matter, will offer material relief.

Decision is Given

The decision of the federal judges follows in part:

"Just as we, on the prior hearing, threw into the scales the absence of an adjudication by the commission and determined the matter adversely to complainants, so do we now conclude that the presence of the adjudication and the character of the finding make it impossible for us to do justice between the contending parties except by permitting the complainant to continue rates almost as high as those fixed by the commission.

"There are added reasons for reaching this conclusion. The differences between the experts arise over theories quite as much as over facts. Conceding that the rule announced by the supreme court of Wisconsin requires us to adopt the city as the unit for determining the fair and reasonable rate, we are nevertheless confronted by counsel's concession that the sum total of all the revenues from all the units must cover the utility's operating expenses and show a fair return upon the investment. Otherwise the rate would be confiscatory.

"That the rates in force when the restraining order was granted would not allow such a sum is conclusively established. In the face of this showing, a pertinent inquiry is, upon whom should rest the burden of proving the adequacy of the rates in the three cities. If this proceeding were to definitely fix a fair and reasonable rate, we would doubtless say the burden is upon the utility. But such is not the purpose of the present suit. The utility is seeking to avoid the effect of a confiscatory rate. With the confiscatory character of the rate established, are we not required, as between the municipalities and the utility, to temporarily adjust the rates so as to avoid confiscation? Perhaps there will be later readjustment of the rates among the forty cities served by the utility. It may be that ultimately the commission will raise the rates of all but the three cities now before us and lower the rates as to them. In other words, under the rule laid down by the supreme court, it may be that a substantial readjustment of rates will occur. We, however, doubt it. After listening to full argument on this question, we are not even satisfied that there will be any readjustment among the various cities. Certainly upon the showing thus far made, we are not satisfied that the rate fixed by the commission for the three cities will, upon full and final hearing, be changed at all. In other words, the preferred location of one city may be offset by other factors favoring another city. The difficulties which attend the application of the rule are apparent but we are not satisfied that any showing has been made which would justify us in venturing to find that any one of the three cities will enjoy a lower rate by reason of its application.

Up to Rate Board

"We are not at all sanguine that the good faith efforts of the commission to carry out the rule announced by the supreme court will result in any easy and prompt disposition of the case. Whether its final determination be speedy or long delayed, whether it result in a substantial change in rate or not, the utility should, pending such hearing, be protected against an obviously confiscatory rate. The commission should be in no way embarrassed in its proceedings by any order of this court and the parties to this litigation should co-operate in bringing the hearing before the commission to a speedy final disposition. The order continuing the injunction will be without prejudice to either side to apply at any time to correct or modify existing rates and it is needless to add this court will be open to hear the application of either party to modify this order when the rate commission has upon the merits of the case finally determined the pending application."

EASTER LILIES MAKE DEBUT IN LA CROSSE FLORAL SHOPS; BULBS BROUGHT FROM JAPAN

LILIES—Easter lilies—symbol of Eastertide throughout the Christian world made their appearance in La Crosse floral shops last week. Tall green plants with one, two and three lilies in flower, are making their appearances in the windows of floral shops and tempting La Crosse buyers to stop, buy them and take them home.

"There are a number of flowers that make pleasing decorations for the home at Easter time but none really compares with the Easter lily, as it is known to the public," said Anton Linker, florist, in discussing Easter lilies and plants on Saturday. "Hyacinths are pretty and surely the fresh, yellow blooms of the daffodil are attractive but there is nothing that is so symbolical, that makes one realize that Easter is here, to have a big, fine Easter lily in the home, where it may be seen by all of the family when they arise on Easter Sunday morning. You can no more separate Christmas and the Christmas tree than you can make people take to any other flower than the Easter lily on Easter Sunday morning. That is the flower they want."

According to Mr. Linker, Easter lilies are grown in La Crosse from bulbs imported from Japan. They used to be grown in Bermuda, those that were sold in this part of the country but the Japan lily was found to be harder and more lasting, Mr. Linker said, and the Japanese or Formosan lily is now bought by most La Crosse florists.

"The La Crosse florist receives his lily bulbs in October and November," said Mr. Linker and they are ready for sale in the spring, at Easter time, when they are blooming."

"How long does it take the bulb to sprout and grow and flower?" he was asked.

"How does the florist time the growing period so they will be flowering a few weeks before Easter Sunday?"

"Ah," smiled Mr. Linker, "that is a trade secret. I could not divulge that."

However, leaving that little secret locked tight in the mind of the florist behind sealed lips, the public probably would be more interested to know that from present prices, Easter lilies are likely to be a little higher than last year because the season is earlier, the florists say. A person may buy them from $1.50 for a plant with one flower up to $3.50 for a plant with three flowers.

Hyacinth and daffodil bulbs, also tulips, still come from Holland, as they have for many years past. Neither the Yankee nor the Japanese have yet been able to beat the Dutch when it comes to tulip, hyacinth and daffodil bulbs. The Dutch are in a class by themselves, Mr. Linker admits, as gardeners of these flowers.

On the other hand, if none of the flowers mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs suit your fancy, there are hosts of pansies, sweet peas and violets that one may purchase for milady, either to adorn the dining room table on Easter Sunday morning or to grace milady's figure as a corsage bouquet.

EXPECT MISSOURI BREAKUP SOON

YANKTON, S. D.—River men here expect the breakup of ice in the Missouri river to take place any time soon, in spite of the recent cold weather. It is believed to be unsafe to cross the river even on foot, and melting ice was everywhere more and more evident until the cold snap retarded the thawing, but it is not expected that the breakup will be delayed long.

NEW ANESTHETIC MADE

CHICAGO.—Associates of Dr. A. B. Luckhardt, associate professor of physiology of the University of Chicago, announced he had produced an anesthetic that they considered superior to anything heretofore known to science.

Dr. Luckhardt was assisted in his experiments by J. P. Carter and the new anesthetic was said to utilize the properties of ethylene gas which in purified form, associates said, had many advantages over nitrous acid, commonly known as laughing gas.

Fashion and the Cantilever Agree

Fashion is the fickleest of masters. A while ago women considered others frumps who didn't lace until they achieved waists like an hour-glass. And more recently out went the spindle heel and the pointed toe that so tortured women's feet. In the Cantilever Shoe you will find the trim style of the sport shoe backed by the most modern details of foot comfort and foot efficiency.

Its natural sole-line, its stylish rounded toe and lower heel fit the foot happily. Your foot rejoices in a shoe made to fit it, doesn't grieve and complain as in footwear that forces your foot to do all the fitting. And the Cantilever flexible arch, supple like your own arch, eases every step, frees your muscles for the strengthening exercise that corrects and prevents arch troubles, and secures for you the many benefits that come from improved circulation—greater vigor, spirits and color.

Come and inspect the excellent workmanship entering into the making of the Cantilever Shoe. See how trim it looks and how splendidly it fits.

They have proved that Jewett Six will stand hard service under all conditions. Because it is the sturdiest car of its size or price—whether four or six. Because it weighs 2805 pounds—200 pounds more than "light sixes." Because it has a husky six-inch frame, with wide top flange, four rugged cross-braces, and high-duty Paige-Timken axles, front and rear.

Jewett owners have proved its wonderful reserve power, as well. Power that soft roads and stubborn hills never tax. Because Jewett has a Paige-built motor of fifty horsepower that literally fills the hood! The largest built for a medium-sized six. Running at moderate speed gives it long-lived dependability, free from usual wear.

These 25,000 owners have proved Jewett outperforms any car of its class. Because no car this size has 249 cubic inches piston displacement. Most power for weight within $200 of its price. In spite of its husky strength Jewett carries but 11½ pounds of weight to each inch piston displacement, where comparable cars carry 14 to 16. The answer is easy!

They have proved, these owners, that Jewett doesn't overheat or get noisy. The hollow crankshaft high-pressure oiling system forces 2 gallons of oil per minute to all main and connecting-rod bearings. This best-oiled motor in a medium-sized car stays smooth and young.

These 25,000 owners, won in one short year from its announcement, have proved that Jewett Six has amazing pep and pickup. Accelerate from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds. Little wonder Jewett has shattered hill-climbing records the country over! Two miles an hour in traffic to 60 on the highway—in high gear. Flexibility that pleases all.

Finally, these 25,000 owners have proved Jewett unrivaled for easy riding and substantial comfort. Extra long springs, deep roomy cushions, wide seats, and substantial construction tell why. And Jewett has handling ease unequaled except in the Paige.

What these 25,000 owners have proved for themselves we shall be glad to prove to you. At your first convenience, see the big-six value Jewett gives at $995!

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS IS SUBJECT URGED FOR A REFERENDUM

Chamber of Commerce to Vote on Proposition Submitted by National Board

The La Crosse, Wisconsin, Chamber of Commerce, as one of the representative business organizations making up the membership of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has been asked to vote on a referendum submitted by the National Chamber dealing with the subject of trade associations.

The activities of trade associations have been carefully gone into by a special committee appointed by the National Chamber a year ago. This committee recently presented a report containing the recommendations. The report and its recommendations are the basis for the propositions submitted to a referendum vote. The propositions, upon which the Chamber's membership will vote "yes" or "no," are:

"Because of numerous useful and important functions of obvious propriety trade associations should exist for each important branch of industry and commerce.

"A trade association should have such a membership that it can be representative of the industry in connection with problems affecting the general advance of the industry.

"A trade association should be prepared to consider all problems affecting the general advance of its industry or branch of commerce.

"Trade associations should continue free from special forms of government control.

"Statsites of capacity, production, stocks and sales should be collected by a trade association for its industry or branch of commerce.

"Statistics of actual prices in closed transactions should be collected by a trade association for its industry or branch of commerce.

"Any interpretation of statistics or other comment which could induce or facilitate concerted action on the part of members should be omitted by a trade association.

"Statistics of capacity, production, stocks, sales and prices a trade association should make as available to the public and to government agencies interested in following the course of industry and commerce as to members."

Functions Pointed Out

It is pointed out in the report that "there is a long list of functions which trade associations perform in the interest of their members and of the community at large. These functions are illustrated by the standardizing and safeguarding of the quality of goods, the reducing of waste in manufacture and distribution, the promotion of trade, both domestic and foreign, and the upbuilding in scores of other ways of industry and commerce.

"Activities are not uniform with all trade associations," the report continues. "The great diversity of problems before the numerous branches of a highly complex industrial and commercial structure causes an equal diversity in activities undertaken by organizations representing these different fields. One association may be spending large sums of money in China in an effort through education to improve the quality of the raw material upon which all of its members depend. Another may be devoting equal effort to scientific tests of the durability of the product its members produce. A third may be seeking to prevent losses through frauds which only as a result of association activity can be brought to light and placed before public authorities."

In its report, the committee opposes government control of trade associations. On this point, the committee says that "the possibility that a trade association may err by violating a statute no more justifies any attempt on the part of governmental authority to control trade associations in all of their activities than the possibility of illegal acts on the part of individuals warrants like supervision over all their actions."

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Take Salts to Help Kidneys if Back Pains You

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, and cleanse the kidneys, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then get fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize acids.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

We are handling Thos. E. Wilson & Co.'s line of Sporting Goods.

Further expression of confidence in their Areo-Center Baseball has been voted them by the following organizations, making it their official ball: The Pacific Coast League, American Association and the Eastern Baseball League.

By ordering in 1921 we managed to get about 20 dozen Louisville Slugger Baseball Bats in the following patterns: Ty Cobb, Oil Tempered Babe Ruth and Cork Grip. We are sorry that this will hardly be enough to go around, but it was all that we were allotted. We have though, other good clubs of the best standard makes in all sizes.

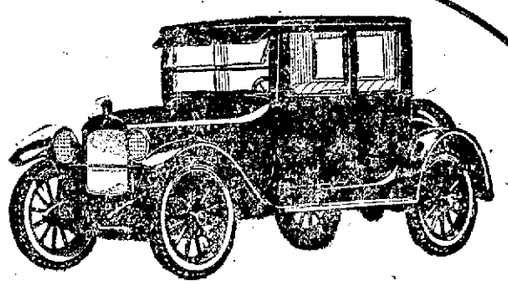

Our line of Mitts, Gloves, Masks, Protectors and Shoes is very complete.

We have some uniforms in stock, but anything special ought to be ordered far in advance. You are more likely to get just what you want without paying the price of a "hurry up" order and, too, there would be time to rectify any mistake in size, etc.

WESTERN WISCONSIN TEACHERS TO BE HERE THIS WEEK

THE WALRUS

BY C. A. W.

G. Bie Ravndal, American consul-general at Constantinople, who is well known in La Crosse, where he always visits during his journeys back to the United States, recently celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his entrance into the consular service. Rev. H. G. Magelssen, an old friend, received a copy of "The Orient," a paper published in Constantinople, containing an account of a dinner of the American club attended by 150 Americans, an event largely in honor of the consul general. Just what an important place Mr. Ravndal occupies in the consular service is revealed in the account of this big social event far across the seas. Dr. Mary Mills Patrick, president of Constantinople College, presided at this banquet. The article in part follows: "After coffee had been served, Dr. Patrick referred to the fact that this day marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the entrance of Mr. Ravndal into the consular service, and spoke of what the community owed to Mr. and Mrs. Ravndal. She then called on Dr. Gates to tell more about the career of Mr. Ravndal; and he mentioned the various forms of public service and of community organization whose founder had been Mr. Ravndal. He has been instrumental in starting the American Chamber of Commerce, the Constantinople Branch of the American Red Cross, the Levant Trade Review, the American Luncheon club, the Golf club, and others. Dr. Gates said a splendid test of a man's character was his command of language on the golf links, and that Mr. Ravndal stood even this test. The chairman then called on Dr. Peet, who voiced the hope of the club that its activities might include some form of civic service through which our national life might find expression for the good of the people among whom we live. He then referred to the fact that with the exception of a year in Dawson City and two years of war service in France, the whole of Mr. Ravndal's official life had been in Turkey; but that the esteem and pride of his fellow citizens was recorded him not only for his official services, but because of the winning personal qualities which have endeared him and Mrs. Ravndal to the whole colony. Addressing the consul general he then raised him to the 32nd degree of the dignity of the club, in token of the esteem and affection of all its members. At the close of his remarks, Dr. Peet in the name of all the members of the American Club of Constantinople presented the beloved consul general with a silver salver, in the center of which was inscribed an appropriate legend, giving the occasion and date. Mr. Ravndal's graceful acknowledgement of the gift was marked by strong feeling, admirably controlled—for the whole event was a complete surprise to him. He claimed that what success he had had in his years among the American community of Constantinople was due in no small part to the loyal friendship of the other Americans, and their cooperation. In happy response to the hope expressed by Dr. Peet that the consul general might have another twenty-five years of service, the latter invited all present to another dinner at the close of that period."

The Mississippi River Pole and Line Fishermen is the name proposed for a new sportsmen's organization which a number of enthusiastic followers of Izaak Walton expect to form here. Proponents of the plan declare that the exigencies of the situation require the organization of a club whose exclusive and sole ambition shall be to conserve the game fish in the father of waters to the end that pole and line fishermen may always enjoy their great summer pastime on the Mississippi. I know, from what I have heard the promoters of the new organization say, that one of the first big aims of the club will be to put an additional crimp in commercial seining on the river hereabouts, either by stopping it altogether for a term of years or requiring a warden to be present every time a net is pulled. These anglers, all experienced in the art of teasing members of the finny tribe from the deep with lures of various type, aver that fishing was "rotten" around these parts last year, and that there's a reason.

A man dressed in cast-off clothes which would have done credit to a Weary Willy was busily engaged a few mornings ago, about the breakfast hour, in the back yard of Dr. Henry Clay Evenson's residence. A neighbor woman watched this chap gathering up odd bits of old lumber and other debris and carrying it to the alley, and finally called up Mrs. Evenson on the telephone. "That's a good man you have working for you," she said. "He works fast. I wonder if I couldn't get him to do some work for me when he is through at your place." Mrs. Evenson hesitated for an instant and then said: "Why I'm afraid not; he has to go to the office in a few minutes. That was Dr. Evenson you saw in the back yard." Apologies; laughs; curtain.

Just what one good American dollar will do in Germany at this time is revealed in a letter received by Julius Burkhart, 1025 Main street, from a second cousin, Frau Anna Mittnacht. Editor Wheaton of the Hokah Chief assisted in translating the letter and quotes interesting portions as follows: "The one-dollar bill you enclosed in your last letter I received with many thanks. I exchanged it for 20,000 marks. I had two teeth pulled and two crowns put in at a cost of 12,900 marks and I had 7,100 marks left. We have lots of snow here (Wurttemburg) and the weather is quite cold. A good many people are suffering from hunger. Pork is 2,400 marks a pound, beef is 1,140 a pound, white bread 950 a loaf and black bread 650 marks a loaf.

* * * *

Mr. Burkhart subscribed again recently for a daily paper published at Rottweil which he has always taken but which had been stopped during the war. The subscription price was 12 marks a year before the war and Mr. Burkhart had always sent $3. This time he again sent $3, but it almost killed the editor. This amount of money was more than the poor fellow had seen at one time since German currency hit the toboggan and the shock of it made him sick. He wrote Mr. Burkhart that he kept one dollar, bought a year's supply of paper with another, and give the third one to the old folks' home as an endowment. Mr. Burkhart is administrator for the estate of the late Rev. Charles Rumpelhardt, former pastor of St. John's church, North La Crosse, who went to Germany last May, was operated on September 14, and died November 2, at this town of Rottweil. The hospital sent an account of the expenses paid from the priest's funds to Mr. Burkhart as follows: Head surgeon fees, 100,000 marks; assistant surgeon fees, 35,000 marks; funeral expenses, $15.35. The total expense, in American money amounted to $78, including 17 days' board and lodging besides a month's attendance at the hospital. The salary of the priest who officiated at his funeral is $2.50 per month.

WILD LIFE SCHOOL SET FOR AUG. 5-16 AT M'GREGOR, IOWA

Same Method of Teaching in the Outdoors to be Used this Year; Experts to Attend

McGREGOR, Iowa.—Dates for the 1923 "Wild Life School" which convenes annually in August on McGregor Heights above the Mississippi to study the trees, flowers, rocks, birds, Indian lore and other fascinating out-of-door subjects, has been set for August 5 to 16 this year.

Within the last few days 5000 preliminary announcement cards have been mailed out to those who have attended the school in the past and to others whom it is hoped to interest.

The faculty all will be back, including Dr. Geo. F. Kay, state geologist and dean of the College of Liberal Arts University of Iowa; Dr. L. H. Pammel, of the Botany department of Iowa State College and president of the Iowa Conservation Board; Dr. H. C. Oberholser, ornithologist, U. S. Biological Survey; Dr. Bohmail Shimek, University of Iowa one of the leading authorities and lecturers on plant life in the country; Prof. C. R. Keyes, Cornell College, expert in Indian lore, and Rev. Leroy Titus Weeks, bird student and nature poet.

Several other distinguished naturalist scientists from Iowa and neighboring states will be on the faculty, their names to be announced later.

The same delightful method of teaching the great out of doors will be followed as in the past three years. Lectures in the big tent under the oaks on the Heights, illustrated evenings with stereopticon and motion pictures; hikes over the hills, through the woods and beside the river; motor tours to more distant points of interest; and motorboat trips out of the Mississippi will be the program.

The student body of the "Wild Life School" includes all classes—business men, school teachers, ministers, doctors, stenographers, boy scouts, camp fire girls, lawyers, college students, club women and whole families, including father mother and all the children. The only requirements for registration are a nominal tuition fee and a love of God's out of doors.

The school is the first of its kind ever founded, McGregor was chosen as the home for it because of the scenic beauty and scientific and historical interest of the region.

The McGregor committee in charge this year is F. G. Bell, chairman; Mrs. W. H. C. Elwell, E. D. Bickel, O. Frykland and A. Widman.

HAY BLAMED FOR DEATHS

CROOKSTON, Minn.—O. M. Kiser, live stock expert at the Northwest School of Agriculture here, has taken issue with the statement by Dr. E. H. Langevin, Crookston veterinarian, that sweet clover poisoning had caused the death of ten head of stock near here recently. Moldy hay was given as the reason for the fatalities, the fifth outbreak in this section during the past year.

Sweet clover is one of the best feeds for Red River valley cattle, if properly cured, declared Mr. Kizer. However, as the result of the excessive moisture during the haying season last summer, many farmers stored their hay while too damp and it was allowed to mold.

A Four That Is More Than A Four

The Facts About a Notable Advance in Automotive Engineering

By Russel E. Gardner, President, The Gardner Motor Co., Inc.

For years the manufacturers of four-cylinder automobiles have been fighting a common enemy—vibration.

It is with a good deal of pride and satisfaction that I am able to say now that to the Gardner organization has come the honor of finding the answer—of eliminating the dreaded "vibration point" from the entire range of operating speeds of the improved Gardner Motor.

A Vibrationless Four

Think for a moment what that means! It means a Four with the smoothness heretofore possible only with a greater number of cylinders. It means a Four capable of delivering more power than most cars of its type, without paying for this power by shaking the car to pieces. It means a swiftness of acceleration, a flexibility of operation such as you have never before associated with four cylinders.

Like most big ideas, the one that has made this engineering achievement possible is extremely simple.

The Big Idea—Five-Bearings

It is the Gardner five-bearing crankshaft.

This Gardner Motor is the only four-cylinder power plant with five main crankshaft bearings—five points of support for the swiftly turning shaft instead of the customary two or three—five bearings to hold the crankshaft smoothly in alignment, to resist the forces that tend to shorten the life of the entire motor!

This principle has been successfully applied in several very high-priced cars. Two of them are Eights with five bearings, while five of the very exclusive Sixes have seven bearings—the same type of construction.

Russel E. Gardner, President of the Gardner Motor Co., and founder of the Gardner organization, builders of fine vehicles since 1882.

A ride in one of the latest Gardner Fours will for the first time give you an idea of what a Four can be; will re-adjust your ideas as to the relative merits of the various types of motor cars; will give you a new respect for the four-cylinder motor.

Somewhere—But Where?

We do not for a minute claim that this Gardner motor has no point of vibration—please bear that in mind. As any engineer knows, such a point must exist somewhere in any engine.

What we do say—and we can prove it to anyone who is interested—is that, wherever this vibration may be, it does not lie within the range of speeds at which the car can be driven.

The Four has always been and will continue to be the Great American Car. Last year 95% of all cars sold for less than $1,000 were Fours. And last year the Gardner Motor Co. climbed to a place among the eight leading exclusive manufacturers of four-cylinder cars.

The Gardner 5-Bearing Crankshaft

A feature found in no other make of four cylinder motor at any price.

In the latest Gardners all the qualities which have made the Four so widely popular have been retained—operating economy, simplicity, durability and dependability.

And because the Gardner is a Four, it provides these advantages at a moderate price—less than $1,000 at the factory—and represents throughout chassis, body, finish and equipment a balanced value impossible at its price except through the economies of four-cylinder production.

One Year Written Guarantee

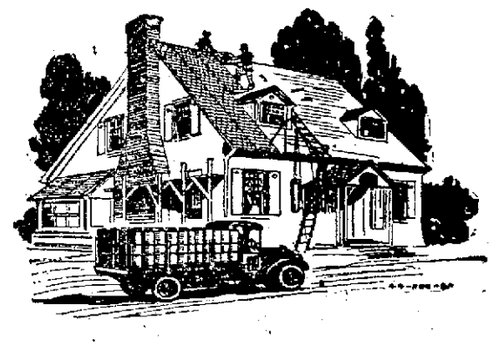

Thus in turn is made possible the second outstanding Gardner advantage—the one year written guarantee. Because we know the car is good throughout—because no one part has been cheapened to make some other part stand out—we can fearlessly guarantee every Gardner Four for the entire first year, which as everyone knows is the critical period in the life of an automobile. No other motor car manufacturer gives a written guarantee covering so long a period.

I have written this account of the development of the Gardner Four and of the five-bearing crankshaft for just one purpose. I want every present and prospective motor car owner to test for himself the performance of the Gardner Four. There is only one way to do it—ride in the car.

Our dealer in your city will be very glad to have you do this.

UNION DEPOT LOCATION SKETCHED

BURLINGTON TRACKS EXTEND THROUGH STATION BUILDING

Tracks and Train Sheds to Occupy Large Space on Both Sides of Second Street

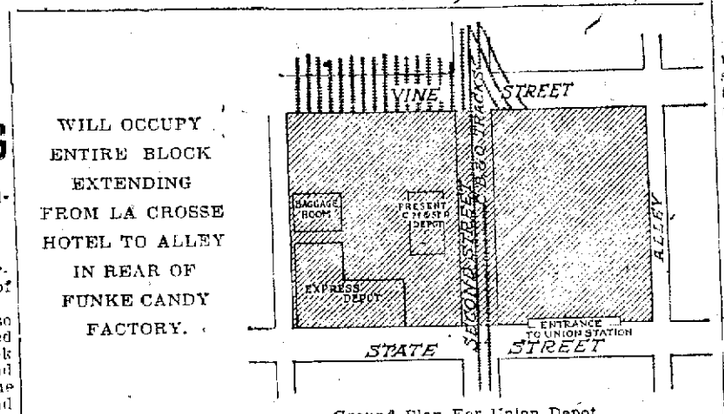

Just where will the union depot ordered by the Railroad Commission of Wisconsin be located?

This question has been asked so often since the state board handed down its decision early in the week ordering the station erected at Second and State streets that The Tribune has had its engraver lay out a ground plan indicating approximately the ground which will be covered by the depot and tracks.

As will be noted in the accompanying illustration, the station will have a frontage on State street with the main entrance opposite the Elsen and Phillips garage and the building and trackage will extend from the alley back of the La Crosse hotel to the alley adjoining the Funke candy factory.

Second street will be closed from State street north being given over entirely to the railroads. Trains on all roads entering the union station will use the Burlington tracks. Burlington trains alone will pass through the station. Trains on all other roads will back in and head out of the station, according to the plan as outlined by the Railroad Commission.

The first aerial flight to be made across the English channel, was made on January 7, 1785, by Jean Pierre Blanchard, a Frenchman.

O'BRIEN IN "STEVE" IS FILM DIRECTOR

In the title role of "Steve," the three act romantic play which will mark the return of Eugene O'Brien to the speaking stage, here next Saturday, Mr. O'Brien will be seen as a motion picture director. The role was moulded to him by the author, Robert L. Dempster who has been associated more or less with Eugene O'Brien in different pictures. Mr. Dempster has laid the scenes of his charming romantic comedy on a picturesque island off the coast of Maine. This rugged and beautiful location attracted the attention of the young author when he was appearing in a photo play with Marguerite Clark and right there and then the idea of the play took root in his mind and for two years he has spent all of his spare time in writing and rewriting "Steve" with the result that his pet idea has finally developed into a splendid play and is sure to cause millions of theatre goers a most enjoyable evening's entertainment.

"GRAND LARCENY"

"Grand Larceny" is the new offering coming to the Majestic theatre next Monday. It is a story of two men and a woman, by Albert Payson Terhune, in which one of the men commits what the other calls an act of grand larceny in stealing the affections of the other's wife. A novel twist to this type of society story is introduced by the attitude of the woman, who is the innocent victim of what is apparently a chain of evil-looking circumstances. She does not acquiesce in the theory that degrades her to the level of things that may be stolen; and in the end, forces upon both men recognition of the fact that she belongs to herself.

"THE COUNTER JUMPER"

Larry Semon started life as a traveling showman with his father's vaudeville troupe and later became a cartoonist on several of the New York dailies. Among his other accomplishments Larry learned to draw by slinging blots of ink from a pen to a canvas several feet away. In this manner he is able to cartoon famous characters.

The old trick occurred to him while making one of the sequences for "The Counter Jumper," which will be shown at the Rivoli theatre today, Monday and Tuesday. It would give him just the punch he needed for the opening scenes of this big comedy of the northwest. So he clothed the idea in action and produced a sequence that is startling and funny.

"BROAD DAYLIGHT"

"Broad Daylight" at the Majestic theatre today, presents a real truth.

There are but two ends to a crook's career; the grey dawn of death or the "broad daylight" of reason. Seldom, it points out, does this white light of reason strike the erring.

Roles are equally balanced between Lois Wilson, Jack Mulhall and Ralph Lewis in the leads, and Ben Hewlett, Kenneth Gibson, Wilton Taylor and Robert M. Walker in other parts.

The plot is from the minds of two men who were newspaper men before they were screen writers; Harvey Gates and George W. Pyper.

Lois Wilson is the daughter of an old crook, portrayed by Ralph Lewis, and Mulhall is a young bum who is mistaken for a rich politician's son by the girl's gang and married by her. When she finds out he isn't the wealthy one's infant, she doesn't throw him down but sticks to him instead, but things come to pass which indicate to him that she is a crook and he leaves her. It takes everything Fate can do and three years' time to get them together again—but that's the usual thing with young lovers who are too idealistic and not inclined to take what they can get.

STRAND TODAY

Tons of jagged water sweeping furiously over jagged rocks; a man and a girl caught in the surging onrush of the river; their skin cut and bruised by contact with ice and rocks; their bodies numbed from the excruciating cold; fighting with all courage borne of desperation against the merciless tide that swept them gradually toward the brink of a mighty falls—that, in brief—forms one of the stirring climaxes of "The Snow-Shoe Trail." Jane Novak's latest starring vehicle scheduled for exhibition at the Strand Theatre this afternoon and night.

Beautiful, delicately charming Jane Novak and rugged Roy Stewart risked their lives repeatedly in the filming of this thrilling episode which will be shown with crushing realism on the screen.

CASINO MONDAY TO WEDNESDAY

Seven years of experiment were spent before the marvelous process by which "The Toll of the Sea" the natural color photoplay shown Monday at the Casino Theater was perfected.

For years scientists have sought a means of reproducing with either the still or the motion camera the actual colors of nature without resort to tinting. According to Dr. Daniel F. Comstock, principal inventor of the Technicolor process, by which "The Toll of the Sea" was made, the sole reason why it has not before been realized is that those who undertook it lacked, for the most part, through scientific training.

"CAUGHT BLUFFING"

When Edna Murphy was a little girl in pigtails and hair ribbons her ideal of womanhood was the bespectacled, stern-faced school marm who taught her the three Rs and sometimes rapped little Edna across the knuckles with a twelve-inch ruler when she was naughty. Little Miss Murphy decided right then and there that she would be a school teacher when she grew up.

How different from her ideal of girlhood is Edna Murphy as she appears on the screen in "Caught Bluffing," starring Frank Mayo, which comes to the Majestic theater next Thursday. She plays the leading feminine role and through her unusually fine dramatic ability, Miss Murphy, though just entering her twenties, is making a strong bid for stardom.

In "Caught Bluffing," she gives a realistic presentation of a refined young lady from the east who finds herself in dire stress in the clutches of a villainous mining prospector of the Klondike. The part calls for exceptional emotional expression.

RIVIERA TODAY

"I think it's a great mistake to place all the blame for the existence of the type of girl which is designated by the phrase—'the one way girl'—on the female sex alone," declares Mae Murray who is presented in "Jazzmania" at the Riviera Theater today. "I don't want to appear as sanctioning or approving the kind of a girl who believes in taking everything she can get, regardless of how or where she gets it, but I do believe that there's a certain class of men who should be made to share some responsibility for her existence."

Supporting Miss Murray are Rod La Rocque, Robert Frazer, Edward Burns, Lionel Belmore and others.

"BELL BOY 13"

A new style in the film production school has been brought to the screen in Thomas H. Ince's latest comedy farce, "Bell Boy 13," which will be shown at the Rivoli theater on Wednesday.

Stage farces like "Charlie's Aunt" and "The Private Secretary" have been shown year after year and won bigger popularity with every showing. The screen farce, however, has been little developed except by members of the slapstick school.

In "Bell Boy 13" Douglas MacLean has illustrated the tremendous possibilities in this field. Substituting the Ince "punch" for the "hokum" of the conventional film farce, a story, hilariously entertaining with some of the most ingenious situations yet screened has been told. Laughs and thrills and a real love interest have been combined in six reels of solid entertainment.

The novel idea of a magazine yarn which told of the experiences of a hond salesman who turned bell boy when his uncle disinherited him has been developed into a side-splitting farce that promises to back old-time favorites off the boards.

VALENTINO LEADING MAN FOR ALICE LAKE

Rudolph Valentino who enacted the leading male role of Julio in Metro's colossal production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," also plays opposite Alice Lake in her new starring picture, "Uncharted Seas," which will be shown today at the Casino Theatre.

Mr. Valentino is seen as a young sea captain in "Uncharted Seas" a story from the pen of John Fleming Wilson. Bayard Veiller, director, considers "Uncharted Seas" the best story Mr. Wilson ever has written.

The story centers about a girl whose husband proves himself worthless, despite her efforts to reclaim him. The youth's trail by his wife and father and the success of a second man, go to make "Uncharted Seas" a thrilling tale of the sea. Much of the early part of the story takes place about San Francisco harbor.

KIWANIS CLUBS GO ON RECORD FOR LAW ORDER, GOVERNMENT

International Body Says those Not in Favor of Prohibition Shouldn't Scoff at it

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—By The Associated Press.—The twenty-nine district governors of Kiwanis international covering one thousand of the largest cities of the United States and Canada have taken the stand that the organization is for law, order nd government, notwithstanding personal views as to the eighteenth amendment.

The international convention will be held at Atlanta, Ga., and because of the expected attendance being about 10,000, John H. Moss of Milwaukee, chairman of the board of governors, Saturday sent out a letter to all governors in which he says in part:

"At present there is probably no subject more frequently discussed than prohibition. At present there is possibly no law more frequently violated than the eighteenth amendment. Prohibition may, or may not, have come to stay. It is, however, at this time a law of the land with governmental officers sworn to enforce it. Obedience to law is fundamental for good citizenship. Even those opposed to prohibition should not scoff at it. They should sustain it if right. They should correct it if wrong."

DEFINITE ACTION IN LYGO SUIT IS EXPECTED SHORTLY

CHICAGO, Ill.—With the filing Saturday of a plea denying the charges of Mary Lygo, actress, by Mrs. Katherine Thorne, the final preliminary necessary before the trial of Miss Lygo's $10,000 slander suit against Mrs. Thorne was removed and definite court action is expected soon. Miss Lygo filed suit in which she charged that Mrs. Thorne, widow of the late vice president of Montgomery, Ward & Company, called her a vampire and said she was dragging Mrs. Thorne's son Gordon "down—down—down."

ANCIENT TAPESTRY OF JOHN D. JR. IS RELEASED BY CUSTOMS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Assistant Secretary McKenzie Moss, of the treasury department, issued a letter instructing the collector of customs at New York to release from custody the famous "Rochefoucauld" Gothic tapestries purchased by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., at a price reported to be around $1,000,000. The letter, it officially stated, will close the incident relating to the holding of tapestries.

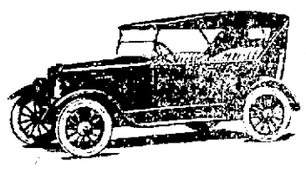

N. W. FIREMAN DIES IN CAB OF ENGINE

JANESVILLE, Wis.—Dead for a half hour with his head hanging out of the window of the locomotive cab, Fireman David Fowler was finally discovered by his conductor, George Devins, on a freight run of the Chicago & Northwestern road near Evansville Saturday morning. Fowler had died of heart trouble somewhere on the run without the engineer on the other side of the locomotive cab discovering it.

ORIGINAL NEW YORK AND ONLY COMPANY PRESENTING THIS ATTRACTION

SPRING STYLES TO BE SEEN AT RIVOLI THEATER THIS WEEK

Annual Show of Mutchow Bros. and Pruess Wednesday to Saturday With Song and Dance

Beautiful gowns, charming girls, wonderful singing, splendid dancing and entertaining novelties will be seen at the Rivoli theater next Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday when Mutchow Brothers & Pruess will stage their annual spring style, song and dance revue.

The show, which is under the direction of Mr. Frank A. Pruess, is to be one of the largest of its kind ever attempted by a single organization in the city of La Crosse. A company of about twenty-five artists will take part in the show, including sixteen living models. The gowns to be displayed will be of the season's smartest, and from millinery to footwear, will be harbingers of what milady, to be well dressed, must wear during the spring months. The ready to wear garments to be shown are from the stock of Mutchow Brothers & Pruess, the hats are to be furnished by the Klosheim Hat shop and the footwear by the Walk-Over Shoe company. As a special attraction, the Mandy Lou Shop will have a display of infants' and kiddies' clothing, with three kiddie models. All models shown are taken from stock—there is nothing made especially for the show.

Program

The program which has been arranged is complete in every detail. In it will be seen several favorites in songs and dances and some who, though not so well known to the theater going public, will undoubtedly make many friends by their appearances. Maude Jarvis, well known local dancer, will entertain with two dances of a classical nature, while Gertrude Prentice will give an impersonation of a Mae Murray dance. "Spain," a song, with a Spanish dance accompaniment, promises to be one of the most likable numbers.

Evelyn Myhre to Sing

The many persons who have been waiting for another public appearance by Miss Evelyn Myhre, whose beautiful contralto voice was the outstanding feature of the recent American Legion minstrel show, will be gratified to learn that she is to sing the prologue, "Father Time," of the coming fashion show. Mrs. F. A. Pruess will render a vocal solo, and Percy B. Christianson will present an original sketch, "When Chalk Talks." Joe Shields and Charles Heyerdahl, vocal soloists, are also scheduled to take part in the program.

Personnel

The following is the list of the models who will take part in the show: Margaret Pryor, Mildred Miller, Evelyn Myhre, Daisy Mohgren, Irmadel Meigs, Margaret Anderberg, Loretta Dere, Frieda Kathary, Celia Ryan and Mrs. Viola Thaero. Junior models—Dorothy Laudemo and Naomi Pruess. Kiddie models for Mandy Lou Shop—Virginia Kukolsky, Jane Forgie and Roger Short.

Singers, dancers and stunt performers to take part are: Evelyn Myhre, Joe Shields, Mrs. F. A. Pruess, Maude Jarvis, Charles Heyerdahl, Naomi Pruess, Gertrude Prentice and Percy Christianson.

WINNIPEG, Man.—The International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is an "illegal organization, operating in restraint of trade," and has no standing in Canadian courts, Justice Galt of the king's bench, held Saturday, dismissing a suit brought by a member to compel an accounting by a former officer. The action was brought by Howard B. Chase, general chairman of the Canadian Brotherhood, against Samuel Starr, former secretary, to compel an accounting of funds in his possession when he was relieved of office in May, 1921, at the triennial convention in Cleveland, Ohio. Starr had refused to give up his office, claiming he had never been notified of the convention's action. It was said unofficially that an appeal would be taken to the privy council.

LA CROSSE HIGH SCHOOL WINS DISTRICT BASKETBALL TOURNEY

REEDSBURG BEATEN IN WHIRLWIND GAME ON SATURDAY NIGHT

Coach Keogan's Quintet Pushed to Utmost to Cop Honors, 12 to 11

BOTH AGGREGATIONS EXHIBIT BRILLIANT BASKETBALL HERE

Final Pistol Shot is Music to Ears of Local Fans

THE final pistol report was music to the ears of hundreds of La Crosse basketball fans who packed Normal gymnasium Saturday night for it brought to an end one of the most furiously fought battles in the history of district tournaments while the Red and Black was still dangling on top of a 12 to 11 count.

Gruelling Battle

By the margin of one point La Crosse won the district tournament but it was only after Coach Keogan's quintet had weathered the most gruelling battle of its 1923 career and of Reedsburg gave the credit of sending out to the limit the basketball ability which has carried La Crosse through the season undefeated.

The Red and Black quintet went on the floor ruling a heavy favorite with volleys of cheers to carry them on to victory while Reedsburg had no other representation than their five men on the floor in uniform. They waged a gallant battle in the face of all odds and held La Crosse to a much lower score than even the most pessimistic fan had predicted.

Evenly Fought Game

In undisputed and combined possession, back and forth, battled through the first half with honors evenly divided despite the fact that Coach Keogan's squad held the lead by a margin of one point. The tenseness of the game and after effects of the "pep" meet in the locker rooms between halves had its results, as the La Crosse team put brilliant work of Harger and Wheaton netted the locals what looked to be a safe lead, 17 to 5.

But the snappy and brilliant offensive of the visitors in the final period was bound to have its results and Reedsburg came back with a flash that all but overcame the local five.

Scoreless First Period

The beginning of the game was unusual in the fact that neither team scored a point until one minute after the second quarter started, when Harger started the fireworks with two free throws. The first quarter was fast but could hardly be compared with the final minutes of play in speed. During the first period Reedsburg presented a stalwart defense which completely upset the plans of the attack. Then, too the La Crosse offense was rather slow and they missed several shots. In the excitement of everything, Coach Keogan reprimanded the officials for their decisions and he received a penalty from the referee. Murphy however missed the toss for Reedsburg.

Shortly after Harger made the first two points, Phillips sank a long shot from the sideline, evening the score. In the remainder of the period, Murphy scored one point for the losers and Weigent sank a long shot a few seconds before the gun at the end of the half. The score at half time was 4 to 3 in La Crosse's favor.

La Crosse Takes Lead

The next half turned out to be a battle gore. Both teams fought furiously and deliberately. La Crosse taking the lead by several points early in the period, but in the last quarter Reedsburg opened up with long shots and a good defense which diminished the lead of the winners to within one point of the final gun.

Shortly after the third quarter began, Captain Weigent of La Crosse was removed from the game with four personal fouls, Regel taking his place. In the course of battle, Harger added some pretty shots to raise the local score to ten points. Wheaton also slipped in a perfect shot from a 20 foot range. The quarter ended 12 to 5.

The last quarter was characterized by earnest efforts on the part of Reedsburg, a few long shots by the team, and an abundance of fouling which netted the Reedsburg five two more points. With two and a half minutes left to play and the score 12 to 11, the crowd became wild and enthusiastic. Both contestants were striving with every ounce of fight they had to sink one more shot. Hess fouled and Harger missed the shot from the free throw line. The game ended very shortly after leaving La Crosse the champions of the La Crosse district, and possessors of the beautiful silver basketball trophy.

La Crosse chalked up four field goals and two free throws. Reedsburg accounted for three field goals and five free throws.

There was no outstanding individual play on the part of the champions, although Weigent slightly had the edge on his teammates from all viewpoints.

In The Sport Mirror

NOW that it is obvious that La Crosse is to be represented by two major baseball clubs again in 1923, we suggest at the outset when managers get together on a decision of dates for the park that they be mindful of the city series which will naturally follow near the close of the season. Not forgetting the numerous night sessions required last fall in order to bring about a decision on the number of games and when they should be played, we offer as a suggestion that dates, rules governing the games and eligibility of players be the first item on the list for consideration.

* * * *

TAKING cognizance of the belief that La Crosse will have in the field two of the strongest teams on record, providing the tentative plans of the Nelson club are not hindered, it is only practical that such precautionary steps against misunderstanding later in the season be taken before the schedule is under way. Just to get the thing started, what is the matter with beginning the annual series on September 9, and continuing the games on Sunday, the 16th, 23rd, 30th and October 7?

* * * *

WITNESSING all games of the district basketball tournament as I did, and over-hearing remarks of members of the various teams represented, I learned that some of the men had the wrong dope on the selections of teams as they lined up in the meet. One of the visitors went so far as to say that La Crosse had things arranged pretty neatly to suit themselves, indicating that the local management had seen fit to pick on the easiest teams at the outset, thus placing the Red and Black in a more advantageous position to cop the honors.

* * * *

SUCH arrangement, to be sure, could not be possible in view of the fact that for the first time in the history of district tournaments, the state board at Madison made all the drawings and consequently no local or outside influence could possibly interfere with the board's selection. In selecting the teams for the schedule, the board used what is known as the automatic drawing, namely: The names of the teams were placed in a box, the first one drawn being No. 1, the second, No. 2, etc. Then team No. 1 automatically played team No. 8, team No. 2 played team No. 7, etc. After the first day's games, there were four winners and four losers. Winners No. 1 played winners No. 4, etc., and losers No. 1 played losers No. 4, etc.

* * * *

"BUNGA" Flanagan, "the Chicago tournament bowler," as he is known to many, is developing a new creation in the line of hooks, which friends call the "Rainbow." His 354 total last Wednesday night attests to the fact that there is still room for improvement, but "The Rainbow shooter" is persistent and can see sure fame ahead.

SINCE Bill Klawitter has annexed Jimmy Kabat's "oversize" ball, the Eagle bowler of the commercial league contends that the dope was all wrong on this sphere. Rather Bill thinks the ball has shrunk considerably, and at least, he says it is not big enough to clean up splits.

One Way of Getting the "Ring"

ANY bowler who has heard the crash of balls against good pins and bad, knows that the former have a characteristic ring. Rich Newburg and Fred Suert were complaining to Schneeberger recently and when the particular point of the "ring" came up, Suert advised that the alley keeper purchase and attach a bunch of sleigh bells.

WHICH recalls to our mind the fact that high scores are not being made since the beginning of the city tournament when new pins were placed on the alleys. A big slump in bowling averages has been noted in all leagues, and bowlers say, "they just won't fall, that's all."

HOLMEN DEFEATS BARABOO, 25 TO 21, FOR THIRD PLACE

Baraboo is Nosed Out in Curtain Raiser Saturday Night

In the afternoon games Saturday, Holmen and Baraboo won the right to battle for third and fourth places, Holmen defeated Westby 20 to 17, and Baraboo defeated Galesville, 23 to 15.

The game between these winners was nip and tuck throughout, with Holmen having the edge on Baraboo in passing. The final score was 25 to 21. The score at the half was 14 to 12 in favor of Holmen.

Holmen was slow in getting started and Baraboo lead a greater part of the time. Holmen appeared exhausted from their game of the afternoon and fouled considerable. However, with the large crowd from Holmen cheering for a victory the lanky team came through with a spurt and netted a four point lead. Considering the fact that Holmen has only 25 boys in high school, the team did remarkably well to land third place.

Hanson, a guard, and Tolvstad, forward, for Holmen, were the outstanding stars of the game, while Hayward and Peterson featured for Baraboo.

Miss Emma Wilder of the Norma' physical education department refereed the game, and Miss Marion Wheeler was umpire.

The basket shooting of Alma Wein, Winona forward, featured the association game, she gaining thirty of Winona's forty points. Badgers Tip Chicago Five On Saturday

CHICAGO, Ill. — Wisconsin smashed through to a chance-to-tie race with Iowa for the western conference basketball championship Saturday night by defeating Chicago, 33 to 12.

By defeating Indiana in their meeting Monday, Wisconsin may share leadership honors with Iowa. A defeat for the Badgers at the hands of Indiana however, still would leave the first honors with the Hawkeyes.

LA CROSSE BIG 5 COMPLETES TRIP OF NINE GAMES

Evans' Aggregation Wins Five Games of Schedule in the Northwest

The La Crosse Big Five basketball team has returned from a nine-game road schedule throughout Minnesota and Dakotas, winning five of the games played. F. M. Evans is manager of the squad.

Perhaps the most striking victory of the entire engagement was that over Wahpeton School of Science, at Wahpeton, North Dakota, by a score of 26 to 18. Wahpeton is champion of the college conference in that section and had not been defeated in two years.

The other games of the schedule were:

Fergus Falls, 33; Big Five, 27.
Sauk Center, Minn., 24; Big Five, 30.
Benson, Minn., 24-29; Big Five, 22-28.
Alken, Minn., 31; Big Five, 28.
Cass Lake, Minn., 22-21; Big Five, 25-25.
Brainerd, Minn., 14; Big Five, 47.

CITY FUEL CAGERS TUMBLE TIGERS OF SPARTA ON FRIDAY

Accurate Passing and Fast Floor Work Enables Locals to Win, 34 to 12

The City Fuel company cagers defeated the Sparta Tigers at Sparta Friday night, 34 to 12. Accurate passing and fast floor work of the local five kept the ball within scoring distance of the goal most of the time. Close guarding made it necessary for the Sparta five to resort to long shots, most of which went wild. The half ended 15 to 6 with the C. F. C.'s leading.

The Sparta Tigers fought hard in the second half to overcome the lead, but after working the ball down the floor many times, failed to score. The C. F. C.'s scored nine field goals and one free throw and the Tigers three field goals in the last half. Tourville and Arnold starred for the Tigers, each caging three field goals.

The lineups:

Sparta Tigers: Arnold, Richards, f; Tourville, c; Meachow, Russell, g.

C. F. C.'s: Rick, Carr, Chow, f; Kempter, c; Bunge, Veneman, Burgess, g.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR AMATEUR CAGE MEET AT Y. M. C. A.

Five Teams to Battle in Tournament for District Basketball Honors

All arrangements have been completed for the first annual amateur basketball tournament to be participated in by the Sparta Spots, Norwalk and West Salem, and two teams from La Crosse, the Big Fives and Reimans at the Y. M. C. A. A Monday afternoon and evening, T. B. Putney announces.

Arcadia was originally signed to enter a team, but their resignation due to the illness of several members of the team was received and West Salem has been secured to fill the vacancy.

Of all the rivalry between the teams it is certain that the Sparta Spots and Norwalk teams head the list. The tournament will offer an avenue of revenge for the Spots, who claim Norwalk has refused to meet them in a return game in their schedule this winter.

Little is known of the West Salem aggregation, but the presence of Harry Cohen on the lineup should make things interesting at least. The Reimans and La Crosse Big Five need no introduction to local fans.

The schedule for the first round of play is as follows: Reimans vs. West Salem, at 1:30 a. m.; Sparta Spots vs. La Crosse Big Five, at 11:03 a. m. Norwalk drew the bye. Afternoon games will start at 6:30 and evening at 7:30.

The winner of the tournament here will be entitled to enter the state meet for amateurs to be held next Saturday at Beloit.

The lineups:

Norwalk team—A. P. Schotten, N. Stoneman, E. C. Mamel, John Glumski, Victor Muhlenkamp, Lloyd Drier, Frank Waibel, Miss Peasecker.

Sparta Spots: Spencer Vieth, Harry Beirl, Spencer Barlow, Hugo Miller, William Lange, Bernard Shristensen, Roy Abrahamson, Wm. Larson, Clarence Rogers, Grover Larmliest.

West Salem: Madas Cullman, Earl Knutson, Clifford Smith, Franklin Rannet, Harry Cohen, V. Lamp, Roy Cullman, Leslie Fox, Walter Chapleshy.

Reimans—E. Voss, L. Gautsch, A. Lredrickson, T. Till, G. Gibson, B. Rehland.

La Crosse Big Five—Harry Moore, f; Art Bergstrom, f; Harold Chinn, g; George Wyllie, c; Nick Calder, g; Ole Gunderson, Carl Klandrud, Julius Taylor, Wesley Jensen.

It pays big, to buy the best Plumbing and Heating the first time. You can sell a piece of furniture you don't like, and replace with something better, but second hand unsanitary plumbing and inefficient heating is harder to dispose of. It sometimes drives you to sell your home, and leave the neighborhood and build again. Buy right the first time.

SCHOOL MEETING IN SPARTA DRAWS BIG THRONG TO SESSION

Bond Issue of $15,000 to Finish High School Building is Voted; Clerk's Pay Set

SPARTA Wis.—About two hundred and fifty people attended the adjourned annual school meeting held in the Armory the first of the week. The report of the building committee for the new high school was read and set forth in detail what had been done by the committee, giving the number of bids received for each of the various contracts, and the contracts price of each. It also showed what changes from the original plans had been made necessary to get the building within the appropriation, and recommended that an additional sum be appropriated to permit the use of terrazzo floors, instead of cement, and of marble wainscoating instead of wood.

Following the reading of this report, W. H. Hanchett introduced a resolution providing for a bond issue of $15,000 to enable the committee to finish the building in accordance with its recommendations. Fred A. Holden seconded the resolution and the chair appointed the following tellers to conduct the voting: Fred A. Holden, H. W. Barney, H. J. Masters, M. M. Haney, S. R. Jones, S. J. Roberts, E. B. Baldwin, John Lloyd.

Number of votes cast was 168 of which 106 were for the loan and 62 against. The resolution was declared adopted. Five hundred dollars voted for the salary of the district clerk. The meeting adjourned after being in session for about an hour.

A business deal was closed when by Ed Nestigen, owner of the large grocery store on Oak Street, became owner of the Herbst Dry Goods Store. Mr. Nestigen took possession on Monday. The stores join each other, and an archway has been cut between the two, making them as one, and the new owner will operate the two as a large department store.

Hi Howard has sold the building on Oak street occupied by the Brendum and Fish-meat market to O. J. Moughmer. Mr. Moughmer will move the harness shop into the building as soon as it is vacated. Some changes will be made in the building to allow autos to drive in at the rear. The shop's growing business in auto top and cushion repair work makes this necessary.

The annual federal inspection of Headquarters company, 64 Inf. Brigade was held at the Armory in Sparta, Friday night Mar. 9 Drills have been held every night the past week, excepting Saturday, and a drill was held Sunday afternoon. The inspection was conducted by Major Mahlon Joyce, U. S. Army, who is the senior instructor for the state.

Relatives received word Tuesday morning of the death of Mrs. Henry Walters which occurred at Spokane, Washington, Monday morning. The remains will be brought to Sparta for burial and will doubtless reach here Friday. No funeral arrangements have as yet been made. The deceased was a sister of B. S. Hawley and Mr. Walters is a brother of Mrs. Roy Converse.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Hawley died in St. Mary's hospital Friday morning. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the M. E. church, Rev. E. E. Horth conducting the service. Burial was in the Angelo cemetery.

THINGS CONGREGATIONAL

The pre-Easter plans of the Congregational church of La Crosse include a week's series of meetings, beginning Sunday evening, March 18, the Rev. William A. Lee, pastor of the Congregational church of Winona, Minn., to do the preaching. The Rev. Mr. Lee is a new man in these parts, though he is a graduate of the Wisconsin university. He has a very enviable reputation as a speaker in the east and south. The series of addresses which he is planning for La Crosse deals with matters of the highest significance for our day.

The union Good Friday services will be held as usual in this church under the auspices of the Federation of Churches.

"What it means to be a Christian," is the title of a little book by Prof. Bosworth of Oberlin college, which has been the subject of very interested study at the Wednesday evening meetings of late.

A notable Boy Scout meeting was held in the general rooms of this church Friday evening, March 9. Troop 5 put on a demonstration of the work they have been doing in their meetings.

The women of the church have given two days this season to sewing for the city nurse. Prevalent sickness greatly interfered with their attendance last Thursday.

The large choir is planning inspiring music for Easter, but it too has been much hindered in rehearsals by illness.

The Wisconsin branches of the Women's Missionary organizations of the denomination, the woman's board of missions of the interior which co-operates with the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, and the Woman's Home Missionary union, will hold their annual meeting with the La Crosse church April 17, 18 and 19.

The Flying Squadron, a noted prohibition organization for education in the cause of temperance and good citizenship, will hold a meeting for the community in this church April 10, 11 and 12.

Ducks Without a Waddle

The sheldrake is different from other ducks in that there is no suggestion of a waddle in its walk. For their breeding place they select a sandy spot, although not always at the seashore. A rabbit's burrow is much preferred to any other location for their nest. They take possession of the hole while Brier Rabbit is out and then he never gets in again.

AMUNDSEN TO START JUNE 3 ON ATTEMPT TO FLY OVER POLE

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Captain Roald Amundsen, head of an Arctic exploration expedition that left Seattle June 3 last, in the schooner Maud, will hop off June 21 from Wainwright, Alaska, for a flight over the north pole, according to a letter received here from him by Captain John Backland, owner and master of the schooner O. S. Holmes. The sun at that time, explained the letter, will be diffusing perpetual day over the region within the Arctic circle.

MINNEAPOLIS MAN SETTLES CASE FOR HEART BALM OF $500

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — The wounded heart of J. H. Buckler, traveling salesman, was assuaged to the extent of $500 Friday when settlement out of court was reached in his suit for $50,000 damages against Mrs. Ellen Lilly, wealthy widow, who, he says, promised to marry him, but balked after he had bought the license. Minneapolis attorneys said this is the first case of heart balm to a man they know of.

New Meat Supply in Few Years

Authorities who have been investigating reindeer raising in Alaska announce that in another decade the herds there will be a source of meat supply for the United States. But until that period has elapsed don't look for any material drop in the price of beef.—Marinette Eagle-Star.

SULPHUR CLEARS A PIMPLY SKIN

Apply Sulphur as Told When Your Skin Breaks Out

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest, by applying Mentho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur, and use it like cold cream.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre At Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

Foot Troubles

Osteopathy has developed a system of adjustments that corrects faults in the feet. Neuralgias of the foot are often caused by sub-luxation of the bones of the foot.

These little bones of the foot with the connecting muscles, ligaments and tendons form a spring that carries the weight of the body. Most foot trouble comes from neglect of this delicate mechanism. Osteopathy corrects them.

The feet are the foundation upon which the body weight rests, and bodily diseases may develop because the body rests upon a faulty foundation. Some of these symptoms are backache, leg ache, curvatures, neuritis, etc.

Take your foot trouble to the Osteopathic Physician.
